Arms Cuts Need UN Agreement PM Tells Russ

Nations Must Be Given Assurance Reduction Measures Carried Out

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has told Soviet Premier Bulganin that reductions in armed forces should be part of an agreement providing means to ensure "that the reduction measures are in fact carried out."

Marilyn's Diary

Skills Talks!

I guess most people feel a little low when they have to go back to work after a holiday but with a swimmer, at least this swimmer, it's good to get back to work.

I went back to the training routine yesterday and I felt more at home back in the water after the brief holiday coach Gus gave me.

Gus put me through a training swim that lasted a little over an hour yesterday morning, and it seemed like old times with Gus in the training boat, me in the water and all our party, Phyllis Griffiths, Dorothy Howarth, Maria Brenk and Jack Judges coming along to give me moral support.

Marilyn

In fact, it was so much like old times that I gave Jack the usual splash of water that I always give him and, good old Jack, he acted surprised and indignant even though it is the umpteenth time that I have splashed him during a practice swim.

We cracked our old, corny jokes that we keep cracking in all our swims but it is things like that that help make training more fun than work.

After we came out of the water, we rested a bit and then sat down to lunch.

Maria and I drove Dorothy out to see her aunt in the afternoon and we returned to our hotel for a little loafing.

Maria said she thought she would like to go in for a dip in front of the hotel and, impulsive me, I told her that if she would stay in for five minutes, I would eat my hat.

Well, Maria went in twice, not just once, and right now I am looking for a recipe to make a bathing cap edible and tasty.

I sat on the rocks in that lovely afternoon sun while Maria was in the water and caught up with a lot of mail to folks back home.

Gus got back into his old movie-going habit. Mind you, he only went to one yesterday. One day in England, he went to three shows in one afternoon. Last night Gus went to the wrestling show as Whipper Billy Watson's guest.

Maria and I went to see the movie, Trapeze, last night and we enjoyed it very much. After the show we stopped at a drive-in for hamburgers and we were home in bed by 10.

$24 MILLIONS SPENT ON SCRAPPED MISSILE

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney disclosed today that development of the Canadian air-to-air guided missile Velvet Glove, since scrapped in favor of an American weapon, cost nearly $24,000,000.

Mr. Campney maintained in the Commons that the money was well spent because it represented Canada's contribution to "the build-up of know-how."

DRY WELL, BUT KIDS FIND GUSHER

Obliging parks worker at Central Park produced "rain" for youngsters today to drown disappointment at finding wading pool empty. Kiwanis wading pool was emptied for clean-out then kids began to arrive in droves. Sun beat on city with increasing intensity; was expected to set new temperature record for 1956 today with a high of 85 degrees. No break in sight, says weatherman.

PARK LEADS LUMSDON IN 25-MILE SWIM DUEL

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Defending champion Tom Park pulled ahead of Toronto's Cliff Lumsdon this afternoon in Atlantic City's 25-mile world championship swim.

A ship-to-shore radio report said that both Lumsdon and Park were pulling even with the Danish girl who held the official lead by virtue of the earlier start for female contestants.

Distance covered was estimated at 11 to 12 miles.

Fifth position was held by Muriel Ferguson of Toronto.

Greta Anderson, a Danish girl who now lives in California, appeared headed for the $1,500 first prize for women. She was far ahead of the other female contestants.

GRAIN CONTROLLER POWERS ILLUSIONARY

He's Hamstrung, Says Milner; CPR Admits Orders Ignored

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Controller Roy W. Milner said today his powers are not operative in a practical sense.

He said he wouldn't use them to force the railways to increase the flow of prairie boxcars, because he would have injunctions slapped against him from one end of the country to the other.

If he forced the railways to increase the flow of boxcars for grain, they would say to him: "What commodities do we not have?"

It would create an "intolerable situation," Mr. Milner told the Commons agriculture committee. Shippers of other commodities, left without shipping facilities, would likely take court action against the transport controller.

Mr. Milner said later he believes there is no one in Canada who can handle the transport controller's job.

He knew when he was licked, he told Walter Tucker (L. Rostern) and that's why he was getting out. Mr. Milner has announced he will resign at the end of the year but will continue on as a member of the board of grain commissioners.

DEFENDS STATEMENT
Mr. Milner made the remarks about his federal powers to control shipping and storage facilities as he defended his previous statement that the Canadian Pacific Railway had let him down badly when he appealed for more boxcars during a critical period of last March 15-April 30.

R. A. Emerson, CPR vice-president in charge of operations, told a committee Tuesday that Mr. Milner had been in "error" about the boxcar situation last spring.

There had been no shortage of boxcars but prolonged delays in unloading of CPR shipments of grain at the terminal elevators. Mr. Emerson singled out the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool as being the "most flagrant and notorious offender."

In his statement that Milner had been in error, Emerson admitted that he had refused to follow Milner's directives for more box cars to western areas this year.

At last night's session of the all-day hearing, Mervyn Johnson (CCF—Kindersley) asked Emerson if "the directives that the transport controller has given you have conflicted in any way with the normal operations of your railroad."

Emerson replied: "If we had followed his directives literally, yes, it certainly would have."

Johnson said: "But you didn't do that."

Emerson replied: "No."

Johnson asked why CPR had not followed Milner's directives "when you realized he was working in the best interests of the grain trade."

Emerson's reply was clear and concise: "Because the transport controller was in error."

INFILTRATING U.S.?

Government Probing Investments By Reds

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today the government is making inquiries to determine whether the Communists may be using Canada as a base from which to invest in American industry.

He was commenting in the Commons for John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) on secret testimony given in Washington by J. S. Armstrong, chairman of the United States securities and exchange commission.

Mr. Armstrong's testimony made public Monday by a Senate internal security sub-committee, said Iron Curtain investors might, by proxy, get directors on U.S. corporations handling secret materials.

Mr. Armstrong said his agency is "extremely concerned" because it appears some securities of

7,000 See Famed Jockey

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 7,000 racing fans turned out to Exhibition Park Tuesday to see the riding of jockey Billy Pearson, winner of $96,000 on two TV shows for his knowledge of art.

Pearson, a veteran of 16 years as a jockey, finished a comfortable fourth on Great Count in the third race. In the fifth race he finished third riding Fairy's Gem. His horse was scratched in a third race.

Anita, at first refused, to leave the water and argued heatedly for five minutes.

However, manager Levine told her: "There will be lots of other days for you. I'm the boss and I don't want to take chances like the ones they have taken with swimmers out here before."

Anita, in tears by this time, complied with the orders from her manager and left the water.

She entered the water at 7:08 this morning in the Race Rocks area, between Pedder Bay and Becher Bay. The swim started on an ebb tide that took her on a southerly direction.

Her powerful 60-beat Australian crawl had taken her 3½ miles from her starting position by 8:30 and conditions were excellent. At this time, she was swimming in slack water that preceded the flood tide that was calculated to sweep her in towards Port Angeles in a southerly direction.

The 5-foot, 2-inch swimmer, who weighed 182 pounds at swim time, having put on an additional 28 pounds in the last four months for insulation, took four small feedings in the first two hours of her swim.

Department of Transport water temperature at nearby Race Rocks was recorded at 50.8 degrees.

Jack McLaughlan Dies
VANCOUVER (CP)—Jack McLaughlan, nicknamed "The Cat" for his panther-like speed in the wrestling ring, died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home in suburban Richmond.

The 33-year-old Scotsman attracted wide attention from Vancouver wrestling fans in 1932 when he won the national middleweight crown

Mercury Headed For Year's Record

Temperature Expected To Hit Top of 85

Official temperatures were expected to climb as high as 85 today and broil Victoria under the hottest day so far this year.

Between 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. the mercury climbed nine degrees—from 72 to 81; and it was still moving up.

In the downtown area the heat was expected to be even more intense.

Weatherman Bill Mackie says there is no sign of a change for two or three days.

NO RELIEF
Warmth of a blazing sun received no relief early today from the sea; winds blew off-shore and weakly. Sea breezes are expected toward night.

Monday official high was 73, but at 5 p.m. downtown thermometers pointed to 82—one degree less than this year's high of 83 (official) May 30.

Mr. Mackie says the last measurable rainfall occurred July 6. Total hours of sunshine in July to Monday night was 190.1. This is 65 hours more than at the same date in July last year and 24 hours more than Victoria received all last month.

The warmest-ever July 18 was recorded in 1944 when the mercury climbed to 88.6.

How does the weather affect Victoria?

Royal Jubilee Hospital reports treating one emergency case of severe sunburn and there has been an increase in emergency treatments for strokes and heart attacks—three in one day recently.

Sales of bathing suits, sportswear, soft drinks, ice cream, sun-tan oil and sun glasses boomed today and Monday—but in other parts of the city business slowed. Golf courses and beaches were crowded.

Shirt-sleeve weather continued to draw tourists and in the cool of evening Monday groups of city visitors were observed peering in windows of closed china and antique shops.

25 NEW POLIO CASES IN CHICAGO OUTBREAK

CHICAGO (UP) — Medical authorities today battled the city's mounting polio outbreak with an additional 14,126 hypodermic syringes and needles.

The extra equipment was rushed to the Chicago board of health by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Illinois department of health to bolster a dwindling supply at free inoculation centres.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, reported 25 new polio cases in a 24-hour period to raise the year's total to 194.

Four persons have died from the disease this year compared with two deaths last year when 35 cases occurred during the same period.

One Hurt, 16 Flee As Ammonia Spills

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was taken to hospital and 16 other persons were forced into the street Tuesday when an ammonia pipe broke and filled an ice cream plant with liquid and fumes.

Garry Hoskins of nearby South Burnaby suffered burns to his feet and legs when liquid ammonia poured onto the floor of the room where he was working. Other plant workers and office personnel fled the choking ammonia fumes.

An estimated 500 pounds of liquid ammonia escaped and turned into gas when it warmed up. An inhalator squad took four hours to neutralize the escaping ammonia.

The accident is believed to have occurred when a drain valve was snapped off by a workman as he scraped ice from a freezing pipe.

MARITIME MUSEUM

VANCOUVER — City council will be asked to put up $300,000 as its share in the financing of a $1,250,000 maritime museum in the city's Kitsilano district.

The grant would depend on a guarantee from the Native Sons of B.C. to back the centennial project. The lodge hopes to obtain a $24,000 federal grant and raise the balance with private and public subscriptions.

FIRE HAZARD

CHILLIWACK — B.C. Forest Service rangers reported here Tuesday timbered areas of the upper Fraser Valley are tinder-dry and they termed some parts critical.

With temperatures in the mid 80s, Mission City village commission imposed sprinkling restrictions until further notice. In Matsqui, engineers plan to sink a well in the municipal cemetery and hope to strike artesian water at about 20 feet.

ABBOTSFORD — Twelve-year-old David Penner of Matsqui was drowned in Mill Lake here Tuesday night. RCMP said the boy was swimming with his brother when the accident happened.

Neutralist Bloc Formation Seen In Tito Talks

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (UP) — Observers speculated today that a new "third force" in world politics may emerge from today's meeting of the top leaders of three "uncommitted" nations in the cold war.

Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was scheduled to join Yugoslav President Tito and Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a 24-hour conference that may forge a new neutralist bloc poised between the East and the West.

All three have denied such intentions, although each is on record as supporting the philosophy of neutralism in principle. Informed observers said the course of their talk will almost certainly follow such lines, even if they reach no concrete agreements.

Tito and Nasser, who conferred in Belgrade last week, preceded Nehru to Brioni, the Yugoslav president's vacation retreat off the rugged Adriatic coast.

Nehru indicated that the three-way meeting was somewhat of an accident.

"I planned to go to Brioni primarily to meet Tito," the Prime Minister said before leaving Paris today. "I learned later that Nasser would be there."

"It's not the kind of conference to solve any problems," he added. "We will simply discuss things."

2 B.C. Men From Missing Boat Located

Two Ocean Falls, B.C., men reported missing from a damaged 18-foot power boat, brought to Victoria this week on a government survey vessel, have turned up safe.

RMCP at the up-coast paper mill town said today Frank Storey and Leo Sepala abandoned the craft. The aluminum hull had been crushed on shoreline rocks while they were sleeping nearby. They hiked back to Ocean Falls and the boat was later found by the survey ship Marabell.

The craft is being held by federal customs officials here for the owners, an Ocean Falls boat rental firm.

Gerald A. Yardley, official receiver of wrecks, said today an outboard motor on the boat was still in good shape but the hull is badly damaged.

Wider Hearing Set On Murder Appeals

(From Times News Services)

The government is moving to give convicted murderers a wider hearing in their attempts to carry appeals to the highest court in the land.

Justice Minister Garson Tuesday night introduced a bill to require that five members of the Supreme Court of Canada—instead of one as at present—must hear applications for leave to appeal murder convictions to the court.

The measure slipped in without comment after one minute of formalities.

The measure follows Mr. Garson's unprecedented action last fall in asking for the opinion of the full court on the case of convicted murderer Wilbert Coffin after one justice rejected Coffin's request for an appeal hearing.

Coffin, convicted of murdering one of three U.S. bear hunters found dead in Quebec's Gaspé Peninsula three years ago, ultimately was hanged last Feb. 10. The court had advised the government it would have upheld his conviction if it had heard the appeal.

The bill does not alter the procedure on appeals themselves, which are heard by the full nine-member court, but only the preliminary process of obtaining permission to make the appeal.

It would provide that three justices, instead of one, hear applications for leave to appeal criminal convictions in other than murder cases. The quorum necessary to hear applications on civil cases would be reduced from five to three.

Tax Agreement Bill Introduced

The measure was overshadowed by the introduction of another government bill—a major piece of legislation to authorize the new tax-sharing arrangements proposed to the provinces by the central government.

The tax agreement bill was given first reading after nearly two full days of debate on a preliminary resolution. Tuesday a succession of Social Credit and Progressive Conservative members made critical speeches but did not force a vote.

Main theme of both parties was that the tax arrangement will continue to centralize power at Ottawa. They urged decentralization—a return of more spending power to the provinces.

The proposed five-year agreements would replace the present tax rental agreements which expire next March 31.

A Progressive Conservative and a CCF member Tuesday night engaged in a furious argument over the former's business connections.

Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo) said D. R. Michener (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) has no right to sit on the House banking committee, now studying amendments to the Small Loans Act.

He said Mr. Michener has a "pecuniary interest" in the legislation under study.

Mr. Michener said he is a director of Traders Finance Corp. Ltd. which has no connection with the small loans business. Trans-Canada Credit Co., engaged in the loans business, is a subsidiary of Traders Finance but, Mr. Michener said, he has no connection with that firm.

The Conservative said he resented Mr. Cameron's allegation and demanded that he withdraw.

"I don't intend to withdraw anything," Mr. Cameron retorted.

Opposition Leader Drew said

BCE TO DOUBLE IN FIVE YEARS

Multiplication of Power B.C. Need—Mainwaring

B.C. Electric plans to more than double its generating capacity within the next five years, W. C. Mainwaring, vice-president, told the Kiwanis Club of Victoria Tuesday.

By 1975, he said, requirements would be almost nine times the present capacity. The company has generating plants under construction at Seton Creek and on the Cheakamus River and this summer will start the second and ultimate stage of the Bridge River development.

"Because of our firm conviction that the present rapid expansion of our service area will continue, we have extended our planning beyond these projects," Mr. Mainwaring said, "and have sought other and larger sites of power potential." It was apparent, he continued, that unless the company undertook development of the Fraser River or the Columbia River north of the border, it would shortly run out of hydro-electric sites.

Start Ordered On Columbia Power Study

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston announced today the controller of water rights has been instructed to make an immediate start on investigations and evaluations of the hydro-power potential of the Columbia River.

"We are anxious for the government to be advised as soon as possible as to the optimum development," Mr. Williston said.

Mr. Williston revealed that Crippen - Wright Engineering Ltd., a Vancouver firm of consulting engineers, has been retained to correlate and assess all basic engineering data and survey material now in the hands of the province or available from federal government agencies.

"This data is being supplied as a result of arrangements developed by Premier Bennett and Federal Resources Minister Le Sage at their recent meeting here," Mr. Williston said.

"Reports resulting from the consultant's studies will be available to both governments and will serve as a basis for determination of policy by B.C. leading to an optimum plan for development of the Columbia at the earliest possible date."

garding development of the Columbia River at Mica Creek would provide a large block of power which would give us additional time to work on the problem of the Fraser River fishery."

"The construction of all these tremendous dams will have an immediate effect on the purchasing power of our peoples because of employment provided and materials purchased. Even after construction, new jobs for men to operate and maintain the generating facilities will continue to provide a higher level of employment... and a group of small new communities will spring up."

PEACE RIVER GAS

Mr. Mainwaring said natural gas would soon provide "another wonderful source" of energy in great quantities. The main American supply of natural gas will come north from the San Juan basin while the Canadian supply will come from the fields of the Peace River.

"I expect to see in the very near future a whole host of new industries established in the northwest which will be attracted by the new fuel, because natural gas is an important asset in the processes associated with many recently developed projects."

Hydro-electric developments and natural gas pipelines will provide major additions to the supply of cheap energy for the whole of the Pacific Northwest. With the recently-built oil pipeline, "they will put us in a position to compete with any area on the economic fundamental of energy supplied."

Mr. Mainwaring said exploratory drilling programs in the Peace River area have shown fewer "dry holes" than in any previous fields and trillions of cubic feet of gas reserves have been proven in the last five years.

"If the areas of the Peace River block fulfil their promise, it would seem that no part of North America will have a more lasting supply of natural gas than B.C."

Mr. Mainwaring expects to see even greater strides made in the next 10 years than have been made since the war, taking in unprecedented population growth, increased trade with the Orient, natural resources, mounting flow of investment capital in oil, gas and hydro-power and "an ever-increasing diversification of our industries."

Campney Answers Simonds' Charges

Victoria Daily Times
WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1956

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Campney today hit back at Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former army chief who has criticized defence department administration.

Mr. Campney said in the Commons that Gen. Simonds' comments in a recent magazine article were expressions of opinion and not necessarily statements of fact, though Opposition Leader Drew had tried to give that impression.

DENIES BARRIER EXISTS

Mr. Campney said the chiefs can always see him and do so frequently. Views of the heads of the armed forces were always given the fullest consideration.

The chiefs were members of the joint chiefs of staff committee and of the defence council and attended meetings of the cabinet defence committee. They participated fully in discussions of military policy.

Mr. Campney said the Canada-U.S. defence board has contributed greatly to the solution of military problems affecting the two countries and that it has an excellent record of achievement.

He said he is surprised that anyone would criticize the board in view of its "yeoman service" to Canada-U.S. relations. Any Canadian chief could meet whenever he wished with his American counterpart and such meetings were frequent. No relationship could be closer than that between the Canadian and American service chiefs. Mr. Campney, concluding, said the chiefs are consulted at every turn on the development of military policy. National defence headquarters was well organized and efficient and, in event of war, would be able to stand the strain without difficulty.

Working for the State

IN THE LAST YEAR, SAYS A report of a Senate committee, the average Canadian paid 31 cents in taxes out of every dollar of income. On average, therefore, we are working nearly a third of our time, about two days a week, for the state. People in the higher income brackets are working more than that for the state and British Columbians must work more than the average Canadian since provincial taxes here are far above the Canadian average.

The Senate committee estimates the expenditures of all governments, federal, provincial and municipal, at $7.1 billions in 1955, as against $1.1 billions in 1939. They have thus risen about 600 per cent.

More surprising is the fact that they have increased steadily since the last war. Peace brought no reduction in the total. While the national Government spent almost exactly the same amount in 1955 as in 1945, the last war year, the provinces raised their budgets from $355 millions to $1.4 billions, and the municipalities from $305 millions to $1.1 billions in this postwar decade.

The tax burden of Canadians, though high by the standards of the past, is about the same as that of Britain and the United States. In Britain about 36 per cent of the national income goes into taxes; in the United States 30.7 per cent.

When Senator T. A. Crerar presided over the Senate's yearly fiscal inquest he always looked with alarm at the rising cost of government. The new chairman, Senator C. G. Hawkins, apparently is not in the least disturbed. He seems to be reassured by the fact that the average Canadian, after paying his current taxes, still has more money left for his own use than ever before. The report says:

"That mythical figure, the average Canadian (man, woman and child) after paying 31 cents in taxes out of every dollar of income, has about $920 per annum left today compared with the $300 per annum left in 1939 after payment of smaller taxes. After making allowances for price increases, real income per capita after payment of all taxes has risen almost 50 per cent between 1939 and 1955."

The Senate committee also argues that some of the money collected in taxes returns immediately to the taxpayer in direct benefits like old-age pensions, children's allowances and other social services. About 11 cents out of the average taxpayer's income is transferred in this way.

But the man who pays the money is not necessarily the beneficiary. He may not be receiving, for example, an old-age pension or children's allowances. If it be true that taxes impose no burden simply because they return to someone in the form of state benefits, then it could be argued that the level of taxation is of no consequence and the whole of the nation's income could be properly turned over to the state which, in its wisdom, could spend it more sensibly than the individual.

The Senate committee does not press its argument to this ultimate absurdity. It realizes, as it says, that taxes at some point discourage production, growth in the nation's wealth and hence its ability to pay taxes.

In a nation growing in wealth as fast as Canada that point evidently has not yet been reached but most Canadians will probably agree that when the state spends nearly a third of their income it is spending too much. And, as the figures show, it is spending more all the time.

Still the Surplus

MR. HOWE, ALWAYS THE OPTIMIST and usually accurate in his optimism, says that Canada's problem of wheat surpluses is virtually solved.

We are selling far more wheat in the current crop year than in the two previous years. Yet even if we sell 300 million bushels to foreign nations before the 1956 crops is reaped, our carry-over will stand at something under 500 million bushels, almost exactly where it stood a year ago.

The surplus has not shrunk but it has not grown. Mr. Howe perhaps has a right to regard this as a substantial achievement at a time when the United States is giving away wheat, or selling it for soft currencies while we sell only for hard dollars.

Cabinet Secrets

A CANADIAN, ACCUSTOMED to our system of government, must be amazed by a recent biography of President Eisenhower which contains many secret cabinet records. Such a thing could not happen under our system, but we must remember that the American system is quite different from ours.

Here the cabinet is a collective body of equals, led by a prime minister who must retain the confidence of his colleagues, all of them elected by the people.

The American president is elected but his cabinet officers are not. They are appointed by him (with the formal approval of the Senate) and are responsible not to the people but to him alone. The American constitution, indeed, does not provide for a cabinet, or even mention such an institution. It says simply that the president may choose advisers as he sees fit and treat them as he pleases. They can be powerful, if he desires them to be, or powerless at his will.

In our system a cabinet minister takes three separate oaths of secrecy. He can never reveal the smallest item of business within the cabinet chamber or repeat any word said there. In the United States, however, the President evidently has turned over a mass of cabinet documents to an author who has reproduced them while the President is still in office.

Mr. Eisenhower no doubt has power to permit these or any other revelations but his candor seems to have surprised most Americans. How, many commentators have asked, can a cabinet function successfully if its current disputes—and all cabinets are constantly in dispute—are published?

Moreover, if secrets are to be systematically leaked, probably for the purposes of an approaching election, what right has the President to give them only to one newspaper correspondent and not the entire press?

Above all, if some secrets favorable to the government are thus published, what others are suppressed? How can revelations so obviously selected and hand-picked be considered anything like a fair account of the Government's activities?

It is not for friendly neighbors to discuss the Americans' private business but in Canada this affair is almost incomprehensible. So it is to many Americans. But then, an election campaign is under way in which many strange things are sure to happen.

Colors in the Dust

IN LOUISIANA, GOVERNOR Earl Long has signed a bill banning inter-racial athletic contests, and to most people on this continent the gesture must seem pathetic.

Only a week or two ago top-notch Negro stars competed in California for places on the United States Olympic team. Many of them were successful and will carry their country's colors in the Melbourne Games. But by the judgment of Louisiana, they may not compete against other U.S. citizens in that state.

Memory turns to another occasion in another country where non-aryans were considered inferior. In 1936, with his Nordic supremacy claims still echoing in their shouted hysteria, a man called Adolf Hitler attended the Berlin Olympics where an Ohio Negro, Jesse Owens, won three individual gold medals for the 100 metres, 200 metres and the broad jump before capping his performance by running a stretch for the victorious U.S. sprint relay.

Did Louisiana notice? Or has it forgotten?

They Render It in Charcoal Here, Too

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

ON Monday I was kindly listing you some categories of New Yorker cartoons, and beshrew me if I didn't forget to list the great supply of drawings of cannibals; the drawings of cave-men clubbing cave-women; and the endless series of people lying on the couches of psychiatrists. . . . It is time we revived the old her-aldic term, "couchant."

I also forgot to mention, or at least to dwell on, the joke based on a gap in the artist's information. For example, there was rather an elaborate cartoon of Leonardo painting the portrait of La Gioconda . . . the smiling one . . . Mona Lisa. In the caption, Leonardo asks the sitter for a little smile. This is supposed to be very funny. Well, in real life he was trying to tempt smiles out of her for four years, and he hired bands of musicians and clowns to soften her up while she spent four years. The idea of troubadours and comedians being hired, off and on, for four years for one portrait is very funny indeed. Even three years would be quite funny. But when you remember this fact, the New Yorker caption doesn't seem very funny at all. Anything but.

LEONARDO felt quite strongly about the scowl or worried look on most sitters . . . an opinion not shared by most painters and sitters. It is certainly not shared by the photographer Karsh, who wants everyone to look as if he was deciding the future of the world, while biting vigorously on a hard pencil of health-food. A cartoon of Karsh asking anyone for a little smile would be funny indeed. I wish I could draw it.

One of the Karsh photographs I enjoy most is the famous one of the composer Sibelius. It gives me a headache just to look at it. I do not mean I enjoy the headache I get, but I enjoy the art that can produce such a powerful effect on me. I do not know if Sibelius really had a terrible headache or not, the day he was photographed. Maybe he was merely in the grip of powerful thoughts, with his brains putting on an imitation of the Laokoon group . . . you know that famous statuary, with the three blokes wrestling desperately with the huge snakes? But together Sibelius and Karsh give the beholder the impression that Sibelius is the BEFORE half of a BEFORE and AFTER advertisement for somebody's anti-migraine pills. "My thoughts were killing me until I tried Doctor Sunbeam's Rosy Capsules. I thought my wits were going to split in half. My boss said to me 'Sibelius, you can't go on like this. Something's got to give. Why don't you try one of these rosy capsules?'"

WELL, FOR GOSH SAKES ONE of those light editorials in The Times (London), known as Fourth

Leaders, deplored the universal use in England of such American expressions as "gosh," "golly," and "darn." Well, "darn" is American. "Golly" is Negro, but it sounds nice and Irish. As for "gosh," it is a very old English word, used at least 400 years ago. So many "Americanisms" turn out to be old English . . . such as "sure" used adverbially . . . you can think of hundreds of others. Sure can.

In any event, what's so wrong with Americanisms, or words imported from anywhere else? The great strength of English was always its ability to steal words all over the place, converting them (as we say in police court) to its own use. Take the simple word "tank." This was lately just Anglo-Indian slang, borrowed by soldiers and civil servants from the people of India. The Indians in turn had borrowed it from the Portuguese of Goa. Would you want to get rid of the word "tank" on that account? And what else would you call a tank, if you did get rid of the word?

There are times when "golly" or "gosh" is exactly the word you need. "Darn" is feeble enough. But I have seen times, in writing for a family journal, when it was mighty useful. Darned useful.

THE INEVITABLE

I WENT to a lecture on art. The lecturer (Sir Herbert Read) told us that when a real artist is doodling, he is not doodling by mere caprice, whim, and chance, but in the grip of some universal law, yes, sir. His work as he doodles, if it is good work, is inevitable, that's what. I suppose if it is bad doodling, then it is inexcusable. So all you need to know is to find somebody who can tell you if the doodling is good or bad. And then you will know if it was caused by Fate or by Flippancy.

Anyhow, among the audience I saw a well-known figure, a practitioner of one of the arts. He was dressed in white flannel trousers and pink socks. I should very much like to think that he was wearing these clothes by the operation of some universal law, and that the combination was absolutely inevitable and therefore good. It would give me the greatest pleasure to feel that the pink socks with white flannel trousers were something out of the Mass Unconscious of Humanity. Not that I find caprice and whims troublesome.

I AM very fond of caprice, provided the capricious do not include me in their plans. I much prefer caprice to such things as the Mass Unconscious . . . the fatal defect in the Mass Unconscious is this: if everybody votes for it, how can it be any good? But all the same, I could get enormous and enduring comfort from realizing that an artist's costume has something of the eternal in it, and comes to us as a message from the universe.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I THINK THE SANDMAN RAN OUTA SAND."

The Chickens Come Home

By Joseph and Stewart Also from Washington

ALL sorts of elaborate theories have been put forward to justify the very heavy reductions in the U.S. armed forces which have been proposed by Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson and Admiral Arthur Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. But there is hardly an informed man in the Pentagon who has the slightest private doubt that the theories are just so much camouflage for the following simple facts.

The Eisenhower administration came to power committed to lower taxes and balance the budget. Both laudable objectives have been achieved, largely thanks to the "new look" at defence policy, which has permitted very sharp reductions in previously planned defence levels.

Even the "new look," however, would not have permitted a balanced budget for the current fiscal year if it had not been for an artificial process of "one shot" defence reductions. For the current fiscal year the armed services were told, in effect, to live off their capital in order to permit a balanced budget.

Limits But it is not possible to live off capital forever. On the contrary, artificially low defence spending for one fiscal year spells artificially high defence spending the next. Moreover, certain military hardware—like the B-52 heavy bomber—is reaching the stage where it must be bought and paid for. Thus the Administration's fiscal chickens are suddenly coming home to roost.

The powers that be in the Administration have been horrified by the size of these unwelcome birds. For example, in order to maintain the agreed-upon force levels for the air force (which many air officers, like Gen. Curtis LeMay, consider already grossly inadequate) it will be necessary to up air force spending a cool $6 billion in the next fiscal year.

Similarly, the artificial savings for the other two services must also be made up in the next fiscal year. Preliminary estimates by the services have put the overall increase in the neighborhood of $12 billion. Final and official estimates must be submitted to Secretary Wilson by Oct. 1.

Any such increase would, of course, knock the budget for the next fiscal year into a cocked hat. It would also knock into a cocked hat the Administration's budget-balancing boasts, which are counted on heavily as campaign material for this election year.

Secretary Wilson has thus ordered that defence estimates for the next fiscal year be held down to about the current level, or at most only a billion or so more. Because the current level is artificial, there is only one way that this can be done, other than by abandoning the 1957-wing air force program, to which the Administration is absolutely committed.

Dismayed

It can only be done by the kind of very sharp reduction in military manpower which Wilson and Radford have been proposing to the dismayed Joint Chiefs. It is well to understand what a cut in manpower of 500,000 to 800,000 men would mean.

It would mean a large scale withdrawal of American forces from Europe, which would drive the last nail into NATO's coffin. In a large sense, it would also mean that the United States had passed the point of no return in total dependence on the Strategic Air Command's ability to deliver hydrogen bombs to enemy targets.

No sensible man disputes the SAC must have the power to deliver its hydrogen bombs, if the worst comes to the worst. But it is highly significant that Gen. Nathan Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, has joined the army and navy chiefs in protesting the proposed cuts. As one high air force official has remarked, "We don't want to be left all alone with SAC."

The meaning of being left all alone with SAC was spelled out in Lieut. Gen. James Gavin's recent testimony before the Senate Air Power Subcommittee. A hydrogen attack on the Soviet empire would result, Gavin said, in "several hundred million deaths from radioactive fallout." The deaths would "extend well back into western Europe," or deep into Asia, "depending on which way the wind blew."

Thus, in case of future local Communist aggression, the United States would be left with the choice of killing several hundred million people, including our friends, or doing nothing at all. The Administration's much-vaunted "new look," in short, threatens to leave this country in the hopeless situation of a policeman armed only with a weapon which, if used, will destroy not only the criminal at which it is aimed, but several city blocks round about.

As Our Readers See It

The Price of Eggs

I would like to draw attention to the Poultry Conference, which will be held at the UBC, Vancouver, on July 24-25-26 next. Top experts in this field will lecture there; the main part of the Conference will be devoted to the commercial part of the business—logical, of course, where poultry, nowadays, is big business.

Mr. W. H. Pope, B.C. Poultry Commissioner, vice-chairman of the Conference, told me a few days ago about a few U.S. breeders, who handle between them from seven hundred thousand to a few million birds. But, just the same, for the small breeder there are also interesting topics. The second day, July 25, will have lectures about breeding, incubating, nutrition, inbred and noninbred strain crossing, the national poultry breeding program, the central testing program, etc.

And the consumers of poultry products—practically all of us—could very well benefit from some time at the Conference. They would get acquainted with some of the problems of the producer as he copes with, and so, would appreciate that all the work involved before they can eat their poultry and eggs or have a dozen or so birds themselves, has to be paid for with a decent price for the finished product.

Times Change

I hope you won't mind me mentioning—but one of your compositors made a slight error in my quotation in my letter which you headed "As Servants Were" he printed as follows: "Tempora mutantur" etc., of course it should have been "Tempora mutantur et nos in illis mutamur" — "Times change and we change in them" — the error was no doubt due to my bad writing.

Now, I will tell you a little story and a true one — years ago, in 1900, I was attending a concert in Bloemfontein, Orange Free State. These concerts were given for the soldiers and were held in, as far as I remember, the City Hall—where all entertainments were held in those days. Above the stage was the following Latin inscription—"Palmas Meruit Qui Ferat" which of course is "Let him who conquers carry the palm." I happened to overhear the following conversation between two British Tommies—"I say Bill wots that there furrin language up there?" (2nd Tommy) "Why don't cher know Jack, its Dutch for 'There ain't no smoking allowed.'"

Cypriot History

As Cyprus, the ancient Chittim, is much in the news at present, one or two little known facts in its history may prove interesting.

That Lord Beaconsfield took over the administration of the Island in 1822 A.D. at the request of the Turkish Sultan is common knowledge. During the Crusades Richard I (Coeur de Lion) of England set sail for Palestine with 150 merchant ships and 50 galleys, but being caught in a storm, some were wrecked on the Coast of Cyprus. The so-called Emperor of Cyprus—Isaac of the Comneni family—went on a plundering spree. When remonstrated with he refused to desist in most uncivil terms, whereupon King Richard took swift action and captured the Island in a very short time.

After his marriage in 1191 A.D. to Berengaria of Navarre, who incidentally never saw England, he, Richard, had her crowned "Queen of England and Cyprus."

Twice lately I have read (but cannot recall where) that England offered

Cyprus to Greece in 1915 A.D., but the offer was not accepted—which was probably just as well as Turkey might have had something to say.

'Right to Kill'

Bruce Hutchinson's article entitled "The Right to Kill" in your issue of July 7, is worthy of more than casual reading. While it deals specifically with the famous Coffin case, and very shockingly legal bungling, it may also act as a warning to those misguided individuals who think a jury's verdict is the last word.

In the Coffin case, as in so many others, the defence lawyer, for reasons of his own, did not put the accused in the box. He thus became judge and jury, and justice was defeated. On the one side, the Crown says, the accused does not have to go in the witness box; that it is the duty of the prosecution to make out its case without help from the accused. This means the jury is left to draw inferences. It could assume the accused is guilty because he did not go into the box.

As a reporter of long experience in civil and criminal matters, including some one hundred murder cases, I say this: That it is high time the law was changed, so that when a prima facie case is made out against an accused, regardless of what defence counsel thinks or advises, that the trial judge should call on the defence to present its defence. That under no circumstances should defence counsel have the right to confuse the issue of guilt and innocence by keeping an accused person out of the box. Only recently there was a case tried before Nainaim Assize where an accused was advised not to go into the witness box by her counsel; the result being that a perfectly good defence was not heard by the jury; and the door to an appeal is closed, because the defence lawyer, as in the Coffin case, left the issue to the jury which heard only one side of the case.

There is something more important in the administration of justice than a lawyer's attempt to raise reasonable doubt in the minds of the jury—to create a fog. What is wanted in court is the truth, and all of it; and clarity always. Our courts do not exist for advocacy, but justice.

I therefore agree entirely with Mr. Hutchinson's article. Have we a right to kill? The Christian commandment is against it; and I have always regarded hanging by the neck as an obsolescent barbarity.

HARRY LANGLEY, 1010 Foul Bay road.

MARKED for READING GREATER POWER

Such small wisdom as I have acquired in life, I've found mainly in nature, mostly among the mountains. One thing mountains do to you is to impress on you a proper sense of your own puny stature and weakness. Materially, they are so much more grand, beautiful and enduring than mere man. And this material comparison is a fitting prelude to a spiritual awareness, for having adjusted your sense of proportion about yourself, they then draw your thoughts away from yourself. To appreciate mountains—or oceans, or unspoiled nature generally—you must first feel humbled by them and then they must capture your thoughts until, in looking upward, you are also looking outward. And when these things happen, you begin to realize that there is a greater power than man.

—Sir John Hunt, leader of the successful 1953 Everest Expedition.

An All-Night Queue

LONDON—I am convinced now that the English like queuing for the sake of queuing. When invented, queuing was devised as a fair way of assuring that those who got there first were first served—whether it meant being first to get tickets for a show or a sports event, or first to get a supply of some commodity of which there was a shortage during the war.

But now, for the English, queuing has gone far beyond that. It has become a pastime of itself, something that's fun to do quite apart from the original reason for lining up.

What has brought this home to me is what has been going on at the bottom of our street over the past few days.

When the visiting cricketers from Australia were scheduled to do battle against England at Lord's Cricket Ground the country did not regard this test match with the same feverish excitement that has been present during former visits by the Australians.

Reason for this is that in the two months the Aussies have been here so far they have made themselves unpopular. They got off on the wrong foot on arrival when their captain announced that they weren't interested in beating England's county teams, they would regard the games they played against them as merely batting and bowling practice, reserving their all-out performances for the five matches against England.

This angered cricket fans throughout the country. For the majority of them, their only chance of seeing the Australian tourists is when they tackle their local team and it meant they were asked to pay money to go and watch a team that announced it was not going to make a game of it.

So efficient have been the Australians at this policy of taking the field with the avowed intention of only having a bit of practice that all their county matches have ended in "no result"—except one, when they were soundly trounced by Surrey, the first time an English county has beaten Australia for 44 years.

So... the fans weren't over-excited about flocking to Lord's to see this unpopular team play England. But despite this, two people turned up at the entrance to Lord's at 11 a.m. on the day previous to the opening of the match. They were the start of the queue that built up during the night to several hundred and it has been that way each night of the five-day game.

Those queuers know full well that it is not necessary to line up overnight; arrival a couple of hours before the start assures a seat. But they like queuing. They have their bedrolls or blankets to lie all night on the concrete sidewalk, their thermos flasks and sandwiches, chess games, portable radios and books and magazines to read by the light of the street-lamps.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Useless to Punish Parents

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

In a thought-producing article in Redbook, Jhan and June Robbins ask if a certain judge was right when he jailed two college-graduate parents for allowing their two boys of seven and nine to go on sprees of slashing trees, breaking windows, and wrecking parking meters. The parents protested that they could not do a thing with the children—and perhaps they were right.

For some time people all over have been wondering why parents should not be held as responsible for the depredations of their more-or-less criminal children as they are for the bites of their notoriously vicious dog.

In one city, a boy of eight was driving the neighborhood crazy by stealing things and by beating up children. All the boy's mother did was to laugh! She probably was well indoctrinated with the modern idea that the surest way in which to get a fine manly son is to let him grow up a hellion and a criminal.

In another city a man was sent to jail for six months when, one night, his eight-year-old boy broke into a barber shop and smashed everything. The important point in this case was that the father had ignored previous warnings from a court to keep his boy in at night. This man, like so many parents today, thought nothing of letting his children roam the streets until midnight.

DOUBTFUL VALUE

Knowing how much of juvenile delinquency is inborn and due to a bad nervous heredity, and knowing how difficult it is for parents who have to work in a factory all day to look after their children, and knowing how many parents are not sane or sensible, my hunch would have been that the get-tough-with-parents policy would not work. Certainly, no parent should be sent to jail for the crimes of a psychopathic delinquent, because such delinquents usually cannot be taught to behave; they cannot learn, and they never will reform.

Actually, Mr. and Mrs. Robbins found that where the plan of punishing parents has been well tried out, it has failed. One great difficulty should have been obvious to the advocates of the law. To jail a wage-earning father for six months means financial ruin to the family. Also, with the father in jail, the city must support the mother and the children. Worse yet, it means that the parents and the child will get to hate each other. The father may beat his son so cruelly that the boy will run away from home and will later have to be sent to a reform school.

Mr. and Mrs. Robbins tell of the stupidity of a court that sent to jail a young woman who, two years before, had been deserted by her husband. As so often happens in families, she had two sweet, good, easily-controlled children—children who never caused her any trouble, and one boy of 10 who was criminal and uncontrollable. Probably, he was a chip off the old block, resembling his irresponsible father. How stupid and wrong it was to blame the poor woman for having such a son, or for being unable to look after him while, perhaps, she worked all day to support herself and the children!

TALK DOES GOOD

As wise probation officers say, there is some sense in haling some parents into court for a chat with a sensible judge. Some are partly responsible for their children's misdeeds; and what is so common today, many do not seem to care what their offspring do. No one has sympathy for parents who, while night-clubbing, leave their children to roam the streets.

We cannot hope to treat all troublesome children the same way. Some delinquent boys may be just mischievous, poorly brought up, or temporarily led astray by a gang. They can be helped. But other boys were born so psychotic that they will be criminal all their days. Many cannot be helped.

We in America never will solve the tremendous problems of criminality until we discard our ancient idea that the criminal must be punished. First, we must substitute for this the idea that society must be protected from his very costly and probably life-long depredations. Next, we must drop our insane idea that a thief's period of incarceration should depend only on the amount of money stolen, or perhaps, in inverse proportion, the amount of political influence he has.

Some day, instead of wringing our hands in futile distress, let us set up camps in which chronic minor offenders will be protected as, long as need be from their own weaknesses. In such a camp there will be no idea of punishment; only the idea of protecting both the abnormal individual and society. Life will be made as comfortable and happy as possible for the internees. They will have work to do which will contribute to their support and will give them self-respect.

Fragrant Lavender About Ready To Cut

Every year, regardless of the previous weather, the spikes of fragrant lavender are ready for cutting just after the middle of July. During the week following, the oil content, and therefore the fragrance, is at its peak.

How do we know it is ready? The old herbalists tell us that the highest fragrance or flavor is present in the herbs just as the first flowers open. Furthermore, the time of day for cutting may be selected for maximum results.

Noon, or early afternoon on a sunny warm day is the choicest period. The easiest way to handle the cutting of lavender is to cut each stem full length, putting them together in small bunches of 18. If a large quantity is being cut for future shredding (or stripping), place the stems in wide, open jars or cans as you cut, without water, of course.

These bundles can later be removed and spread thinly and evenly on trays, either slatted or of wire, for drying. This process should be done as quickly as possible to retain fragrance, yet it is accomplished by warm air circulation, not by direct sunlight. Bleaching and loss of perfume results from sun drying.

The ideal spot for drying is a sun porch with the windows open, laying the trays of lavender on a table out of the sun's rays. A small quantity may be hung in a warm airy spot in the kitchen. Care must be exercised so that the heads are not dried to the point where the buds drop upon being touched.

Federal Aid On Education Asked by MP

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal aid to education is needed to provide all children an equal opportunity, a woman member of the opposition said in the Commons Tuesday.

The present system of municipal financing of schools fosters inequalities, Margaret Aitken (PC, York Humber) said.

From town to town and province to province, differences in wealth produced different standards of education. All children could have equal opportunity if the federal government shared the cost.

Miss Aitken, a Toronto newspaper columnist, spoke as the opposition continued for the second day its objections to new tax-sharing proposals made by the federal government to the provinces.

ON, OVER AND UNDER DOUGLAS

my side of the story

A continuing series
BY THE DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

Anyone who has ever tried to make a long-distance call from a street telephone in a small French town in the middle of the night will sympathize with the almost impossible task that Perry had undertaken.

His French was rough and ready, and his difficulty in making himself understood, combined with the agitation spread throughout the system by the unreasonably late call, led to what even at the time struck me as one of the funniest scenes I have ever witnessed.

Perry went slowly but magnificently mad. Standing in the headlights, brandishing the receiver, he cursed the French communications system in general, and its Brignoles representatives in particular, all the while pounding his fist against the side of the box.

As an example of a man running amuck while rooted in one place it was a masterpiece. Eventually, through dogged British perseverance, Perry muddled through to Herman.

He had been expecting us and would wait up. He warned that the reporters were already encamped around the villa, but he had sent for the French police to clear a way for us through the gates, which would be left open.

ARRIVE AT 2.30

It was about two-thirty in the morning of December 6 as we mounted the steep, winding road behind Cannes to Lou Vieil.

The story has been published that as the car shot through the gates I was crouched on the floor with a rug over my head. This is correct. Perry had spotted a crowd at the entrance and had warned me to get out of sight.

I slid off the seat, pulling the lap robe over me.

Herman and Katherine Rogers were at the door. They must have been taken aback to see me emerge dishevelled from under my camouflage.

Katherine put her arms about me and led me inside where a fire was blazing in the living room. I was back among friends.

For days the Press was deployed around the villa like a besieging army. The Rogerses were followed wherever they went; inquisitive telephone operators, in the pay of reporters, listened in on their telephone conversations; and attempts were made to bribe their servants.

Katherine and Herman bore the burden they incurred from my presence with unfailing kindness. I have reason to be grateful to them as perhaps to no one else on earth, with the exception of my Aunt Bessie Merryman.

Katherine gave up her bedroom to Detective Evans, and brook in the servants' quarters. It was quite a load suddenly to put upon a small household, the more so as Lou Vieil now became, as far as the Press was concerned, the principal focus of its attention.

I learned when Katherine came to breakfast with me in my room Sunday morning that there was to be no escape for me.

Several hundred reporters and photographers were posted around the grounds. The house, a 12th century monastery, is situated on a stony ledge slightly below the crest of a hill.

Photographers equipped with long-distance lenses had stationed themselves on the higher ground, and some were even perched in the trees.

If I wished to preserve my privacy, Katherine warned, I had better be careful to stay away even from an open window.

"The French police want to be helpful and Herman will do his best," Katherine added, "but for a while at least you had better regard yourself as a prisoner."

In seeking to escape from one trap I had run blindly into another. Worse still, I was coming to realize that the crisis enfolding David was at the exploding point.

That day there were a number of telephone calls from David at the Fort. Necessarily our talks were guarded and we resorted—I suspect sometimes to the compounding of our mutual misunderstanding—to our code.

At first David seemed more optimistic, more sure of regaining control of the situation. Mr. Baldwin had consented to his consulting Winston Churchill, and they had dined together at the Fort Friday evening. Mr. Churchill and Lord Beaverbrook were working in close harmony. Much would depend upon how they were able to present the constitutional argument—Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons and Lord Beaverbrook in the Press.

All this, David suggested, provided some grounds for hope. But as I tried to grasp the real meaning of David's words through the double-talk of the code, a different conclusion formed in my own mind.

FRIENDS FIGHTING

If Lord Beaverbrook and Mr. Churchill were still fighting, then it meant only one thing: they must think that they could prevail upon the King to withdraw the marriage proposal, at least temporarily, and to be crowned as scheduled in May. Then, with Mr. Baldwin outmanoeuvred and the King secure on his throne, the question of the marriage could be raised later if he still persisted in the idea.

But when I tried to put this into words there was an anguish in David's voice that ambiguities of language could not conceal. "David," I pleaded, abandoning the code, "please listen to your friends."

"I will," he promised somewhat unconvincingly.

At that moment I had the sensation of talking to a stranger. "You must listen," I went on. "Nothing will be lost, nothing will be changed, by your waiting."

His voice was barely audible as she said, "You can trust me. However, I must deal with this situation in my own way."

He had turned remote and unrecognizable. His inner defences had gone up in a manner that I had observed in other, less fateful circumstances.

FRIDAY: I weep as the King leaves the throne.

AROUND AND ABOUT

With Jo Healy

CAYCUSE—THE ENTERPRISING UNITED CHURCH minister whose charge is the Lake Cowichan district tells some good ones on himself. My favorite happened recently, when he discovered that his wedding anniversary and Mother's Day fell, by convenient coincidence, on June 13. So he planned an extra special gift for his wife, and proudly presented the offering on that morning, warmly congratulating her on this double celebration. Except, she mentioned casually, their wedding anniversary was to fall on June 18, but thank you anyway.

June 13 was the anniversary of the young cleric's ordination, and all was forgiven in view of a mistake of nice simplicity—the confusing of the times of the giving of two sacred vows that have a parallel of dignity and beauty in their pledge.

GOING TO THE OTHER EXTREME

I wonder who the business man in the mid-Island town is who had the good fortune to have returned to him his wallet containing $200 in cash and some negotiable cheques. He thumbed through the contents carefully, assuring himself that every dollar was intact, said "thank you" to the finder and walked away. I wonder if he had a feeling of well-being, unshared by the street-cleaner who found and returned the wallet, and, caring not one whit for a reward, must resent the fact that his unquestionable honesty was subjected to such insufferable questioning.

THE SAME YOUNG MINISTER IS MAKING OF church activities a thing of liveliness for us. Without in any way detracting from, but rather making one more aware of the depth of meaning of religion, he keeps our interest at high pitch and gives the younger group a sense of satisfaction in taking part in all aspects of the program. The bread-winner, with unprecedented enthusiasm, has offered to attend the church banquet with me tonight, even though the day is hot and the event calls for white collar and tie.

Daughter, who moans with heart-rending anguish at having to arise on regular school mornings, now leaps out of bed before I can call her. She has a daily class of youngsters under her wing at the Church Summer School; and as I see her nightly studying the lesson for the next day I think she'd probably be a high school honor student if she applied herself to those academics with such fervor.

The United Church, by giving to the world such leaders as Bob Wallace and his student assistant Jim Manley, will accomplish that objective that is earnestly sought from every pulpit in the land—the bringing of the family group back into the circle of the church.

Public Hearings On Forests Urged

Licences, Public Business Sloan Hears from Management Witness

If the government is to continue with its present system of Forest Management Licences, there should be provision for public hearings, Ronald Howard, counsel for Western Forest Management Ltd., told the Sloan Royal Commission on Forestry, Tuesday.

"We consider that public business should be conducted in a public manner as is consistent with good administration," Mr. Howard said.

He referred to a recent report that ships, built in Japan, had been used to take "liquid" pulp into the United States.

"When ships are built in Japan for the purpose of exporting pulp to the United States, it suggests that manufacturing plants in the U.S. are going to depend to a greater extent than previously on exports from B.C."

"We see this as a significant trend. When you consider the companies now operating in our forests which are U.S.-controlled, you realize just how serious the situation could become," Mr. Howard continued.

He said several well-known companies in B.C. such as Alaska Pine and Celulose, are now U.S. controlled.

"We believe we should be doing a lot more planning in regard to our forests than we are doing. We should be giving very serious consideration to what is the effect of the pattern we are creating under our present system of forest management licences."

Mr. Howard declared the only way to keep the forest industry effective is to keep it competitive. He held that the term of tenure in forest management should be no longer than is needed to attract capital.

Auto Court Fire Costs $3,500

DUNCAN—Fire started by an oil heater caused an estimated $3,500 damage Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at a cabin in the Cushman Auto Court.

According to Leo Sprengle, owner, the loss was covered by insurance. The interior was badly burned, and all furnishings with the exception of a refrigerator, television set, record player and a dressing table were destroyed. Occupants of the cabin were Mrs. A. Ottoson and her son.

NO FLOWER SHOW

CHEMUNUS—There will be no flower show here this year. Members of the Garden Club have decided to hold a competition for members only, when they will compete for the Canadian Bank of Commerce Trophy.

Sproat Lake Folk Win Big Concession

PORT ALBERNI—B.C. Power Commission has agreed to a lower water level at Sproat Lake than that originally planned in its hydro development scheme to serve the Alberni Valley.

In the project, Sproat Lake will act as a conduit for water from Great Central Lake, but itself will not provide storage. In the first plan, the lake surface was to vary from seven to 10 feet above the low water mark, but H. Lee Briggs, general manager of the commission, has announced the range will be from five to eight feet.

"Despite a decrease in the power output and other restrictive features, it would nevertheless be acceptable to the commission as a basis of operation," Mr. Briggs said in an announcement of the change of plans.

Sproat Lake Ratepayers' Association had told the commission that damage to property might be caused through maintaining the higher operation range.

"is this seat taken?"

On a train, you're in a little, warm and lighted world, sharing in an experience of which memories are made...

In the diner the young man said: "I do a lot of travelling by car, but whenever I can, I hop aboard CNR. I can think on a train, I can work if I feel like it, but mostly I enjoy that wonderful feeling of relaxing completely. Nowadays, the only two places I can really relax in are my home and on a train."

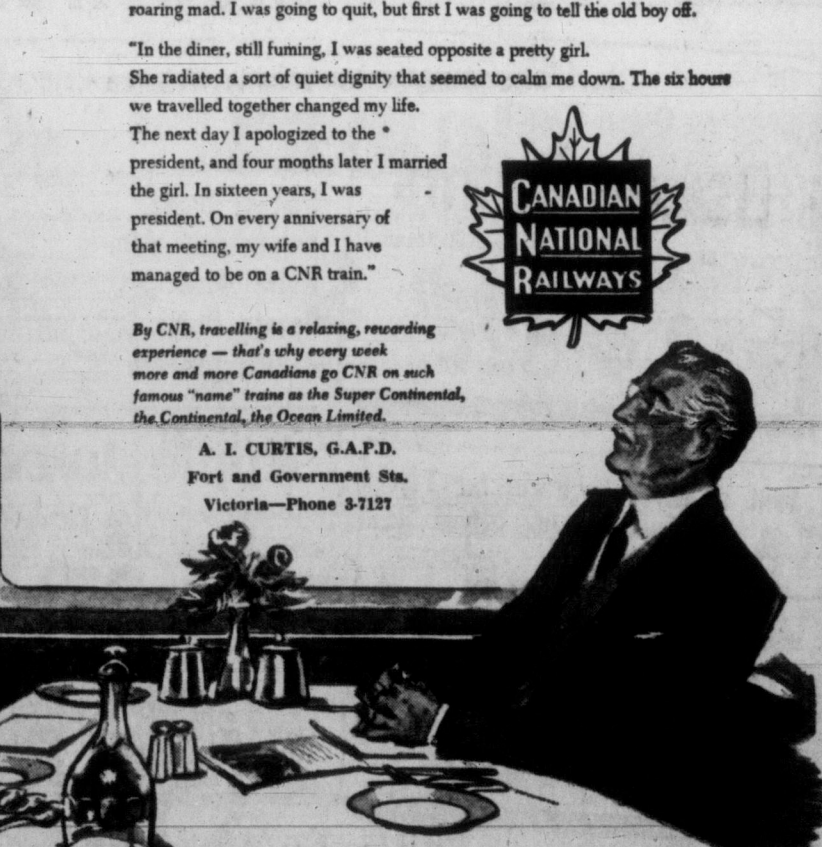

The older man said: "I love travelling by train... you know, today is an important anniversary to me." Before the young man had a chance to say anything he went on: "Many years ago I was a salesman, too. I was cocky. I was our firm's biggest producer and I knew everything. One day I got a letter from the president raking me over the coals for what I thought was a small mistake. I was on a train in ten minutes, roaring mad. I was going to quit, but first I was going to tell the old boy off."

"In the diner, still fuming, I was seated opposite a pretty girl. She radiated a sort of quiet dignity that seemed to calm me down. The six hours we travelled together changed my life. The next day I apologized to the president, and four months later I married the girl. In sixteen years, I was president. On every anniversary of that meeting, my wife and I have managed to be on a CNR train."

By CNR, travelling is a relaxing, rewarding experience — that's why every week more and more Canadians go CNR on such famous "name" trains as the Super Continental, the Continental, the Ocean Limited.

The two teams, each with a victory in the best-of-three series, were battling for the right to meet Patterson Construction in the finals.

Larry DeCosta, pitching for Victoria, allowed only two hits before darkness halted the game at the end of seven innings. Dave Hanson, Decorators' moundsman, was touched for three safeties.

In a Babe Ruth League game at Beacon Hill Park, Optimists bested McCall-Davey 4-2, on the combined efforts of Darrell Lorimer and Larry McPherson, to move into the semifinal round of the league playoffs.

Optimists will now meet Menzies to determine which team plays UCT for the league crown. Mawson-Gage and Rotary battled to a 10-inning, 6-6 tie in a Pony League action at Carnarvon Park. The game was highlighted by the fine relief pitching of John Balloch, who held Rotary scoreless and struck out 14 after he came on in the fourth.

Yarrow Dodgers entered the finals against Army Pirates in the Esquimalt-Vic Little League as they stopped Lions, 10, at Bullen Park. Don Patterson and reliever John Yankoski allowed only four hits.

As fight time neared and the lesser gladiators moved in and out of the dressing room, Watson still remained in his street shoes.

WILL OFFICIATE AT PRIZE-GIVING

Marilyn To Honor Solarium Derby

The annual Anglers-Times Solarium salmon derby will have honored company on Sunday.

Marilyn Bell, the pert 18-year-old Toronto miss, who later this year will attempt the Juan de Fuca Strait swim, has graciously consented to officiate at the prize-giving ceremony.

Final derby details were ironed out Tuesday night by the derby committee under chairman George Douglas, with the emphasis on a spirited stretch drive to reach the goal of $7,000.

The derby will start at 6 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. All boats must be at docks by 3 p.m. to be eligible for prizes.

Prize presentation will be held at the Anchorage Boat-house at 4:30 p.m. following which the consolation award winner will be determined. There are over 30 fishing prizes with the probability that the total of awards may reach 40 by Sunday.

Topping the list are an Evinrude motor, complete camping outfit, Lawn Boy power mower, Eureka vacuum cleaner, bicycle (for the junior winner), rods, reels, cold packs, electric irons, sport shirts . . . etc.

A complete list of all prizes and donors will be announced later in the week.

Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association derby rules will prevail—no hand or leaded lines, while rods must not be less than six feet in length.

A special radio hookup through the co-operation of the Royal Canadian Navy will keep anglers at each end of the inlet informed of the progress of the derby. For example, results from Hall's will be radioed by walkie-talkie to the Anchorage and vice versa.

Miss Bell, although not participating in the derby, is scheduled to arrive at the Anchorage between 4:15 and 4:30. In an effort to spur sales of derby tickets, a radio jam-boree will be held over radio station CKDA Thursday night starting at 9:05.

Taking part in the program will be Miss Bell; Bill Heaney, president of the Solarium board of directors; Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times; Anglers' president Andy Anderson; Lee Hallberg; Ted Reynolds of CBUT, Vancouver, and many other well-known outdoorsmen.

Record sum for Solarium derby was established two years ago when a total of $6,723 was realized. In the past seven years over $30,000 has been raised through the medium of the Solarium event, biggest one-day derby of the season.

Pledges will be accepted during the program, radio time being donated by manager Dave Armstrong of CKDA. Chairman Douglas said: "A determined effort by all committeemen this week, and the continued good support of the public can put us over the top."

Rocks Host Deadly Foe

Pils Bring 9-Game Win Streak To Arena Tonight; Trim 'Bellies

Pilsners 14, Salmonbellies 10

A new, and just as deadly, foe has risen up in front of the Mann Cup champion Victoria Shamrocks of the Intercity Lacrosse League.

Once it was the Nanaimo Timbermen that the Rocks considered as their deadliest enemies, but now, with the T-Men far out in first place, the Irish have been plunged into a duel with Vancouver Pilseners for second spot in the loop.

And the Pils are proving rough. Riding a nine-game winning streak, they will be in Memorial Arena tonight at 8:30 to clash head-on with the third-place Shamrocks.

Pilseners have a six-point cushion. At Vancouver's Kerrisdale Arena Tuesday night, they boosted their margin over Victoria two more points by decisively winning the last-place New Westminster Salmonbellies, 14-10.

This leaves the Shamrocks in the unenviable position of making up the deficit in 10 remaining games, with second place and the home floor advantage in the playoffs at the prize.

Coach Whitey Severson will start the big surge tonight. Although he won't play himself because of a bad cold, Whitey will have Larry Booth, Al Gill and Peeewe Bradshaw on one line, rookies Bert Bertola, Ed Kowalyk and Ed Longpre on another, and Jack Northup, Harry Irwin and Art Green on the third.

Defensive pairings will be Bill Bamford and Jack Thompson; Al Davies and Lou Landless. Mel Davison will be utility.

Whitely will start Gordy Johnston in goal, with rookie Don Hamilton standing by just in case.

For the Pilseners, rugged Skip MacKay will sit this one out, incurring a match misconduct penalty Tuesday night against New Westminster.

As for Tuesday's game itself, Vancouver held a narrow 5-4 lead at halftime, increased it to 10-8 after three periods and kept the upper hand during the final quarter.

SEPKA STARS
New Westminster's Cliff Sepka was the individual star of the game, scoring six of his team's 10 goals.

Bobby Marsh, Bill Barbour and Bob Hunt each scored three times for Pilseners, while goalie Stan Joseph turned in another steady performance.

Foul Bay made it 12 wins in 13 games in senior B lacrosse at Stevenson Park Tuesday as they downed Junior Shamrocks, 9-6.

With only two games remaining in league play, Foul Bay takes on the Jokers in a best-of-five series to determine the city champions, the series commencing July 25. Second and third games are carded for July 31 and August 2.

Junior Shamrocks will meet the mainland champions in a two-game series for the provincial crown late in August.

In Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association pee-wee action at Stevenson Park on Tuesday, Saanich Tigers upset Saanich Greens, 7-1, in a game marked by fine goaltending.

Oak Bay Shamrocks sank Fernwood, 11-5, in Tuesday's other pee-wee contest. Tim Moulson, making his first start as a lacrosse goalie, blanked Fernwood until midway into the third period.

Arrows 7, Gorge 1
It's a little late, but Arrows finally seem to have Gorge Hotel's number in the Victoria Senior "A" Men's Softball League.

Taking their second decision in a row over the league leaders Tuesday night at Central Park, Arrows came up with an 8-7 victory. It was their fifth in 24 starts this season.

A big five-run first inning started it off. Arrows made it 7-1, before Gorge wiped out the deficit with a six-run frame of their own.

Les Anderson scored the winning run in the sixth, singling, stealing second and coming home on Gerry Parker's single.

Anderson also hit a home run for Arrows, while Flori Goegan slammed out a bases-loaded homer for Gorge in the fifth.

Archie Sluggert was the winning pitcher and Barry Jackson the loser.

Heavy Bout Goes Formal

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's greatest sports spectacle since the 1955 Grey Cup final is scheduled here July 25 when Archie Moore and James J. Parker meet in what is called a world heavyweight boxing title bout. It may surpass the football classic in color.

"We want to put on a production that Canadians will long remember," Andy Niederreiter of New York, promotion director of the 15-round fight, said in an interview Monday night. "It will be something that even Americans have never seen in the fight game."

Production costs are estimated at $50,000. Niederreiter and his associates figure it is money well spent. They aren't missing a bet and they candidly confess their preparations are modelled along the lines of big-time fights staged in England.

REPORTERS GO FORMAL

Niederreiter will have models as ushersettes at ringside, a shining red carpet for $20-a-seat ringside patrons, color guards, bands, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, powerful revolving searchlights, a hunting-draped ring, Canadian and American flags on the ring posts, flags flanking Maple Leaf Stadium and possibly a parade from downtown Toronto to the stadium in the southwest section of the city.

The 456 persons in the first three ringside rows will be dressed to the teeth—the women in evening gowns, furs and jewelry and the men in tuxedos or white dinner jackets.

"Every person who bought a seat in these rows agreed to go to the fight all dolled up," Niederreiter said.

Even the press-row occupants will be asked to go formal. "We'll appeal to the newspaper boys and others to dress up for the occasion," Niederreiter said. "Of course, we'll supply the suits for these guys."

Page Honored by Hall of Fame

EDMONTON (CP)—J. Percy Page, 69, for 25 years coach of the Edmonton Grads women's basketball team, Monday night was presented with his Canadian sports Hall of Fame membership scroll.

In a brief ceremony during the stage show at the Edmonton exhibition grandstand, the scroll was presented by Hal Pawson, sports editor of the Journal and Alberta representative of the Hall of Fame.

CPGA Tourney Set at Weekend

ONE THROW FOR 100 Gs

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hey, strong arm, want to win $100,000?

Hollywood Stars will give you that amount if you can stand at home plate and throw a baseball through a hole 3.3647 inches in diameter in a board placed at second base.

The regulation Pacific Coast League baseball is only 2.9647 inches. That leaves a tidy clearance of 1/4 inch all around.

The Stars announced the "simple" contest will begin Thursday night and continue on every home date for the rest of the 1956 season.

The first person to throw the ball directly through the hole will receive a certified cheque for $100,000.

Three fans will get one throw apiece each night. The lucky peggies will be selected by ticket drawing.

Dissolution of WCJHL Called Backward Step

EDMONTON (CP)—Perhaps "tragedy" is a strong word to use in connection with the fold-up of the Western Junior Hockey League this week, but there are many observers in hockey in western Canada who feel no word can be too strong.

"This is a very serious backward step," one man, closely connected with teams in the WJHL for several years, said. "It is most unfortunate as far as the Canadian hockey picture is concerned."

The Western Junior Hockey League, formed in 1948 and at one time a seven-team circuit, was second only to the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in Canadian junior hockey.

It was the farthest-west junior league in the country, and by far the most glamorous amateur circuit in the west after the old Western Canada Senior League gave away to the professional Western Hockey League in 1951.

The WJHL was a major source of player talent for the professional leagues, particularly the WHL, which in the last five seasons has drawn about 75 per cent of its new players from it.

The Quebec, American and National professional leagues also have drawn a number of players from the WJHL and it is the pros who many observers believe will feel the seriousness of the league's collapse. They may not feel it immediately, these people say, but they will definitely feel it.

25 Additional Industries Added to Toronto Register

TORONTO (BUP)—Toronto boasts 25 additional industries since the beginning of the year.

William Wilson, general manager of the Toronto Industrial Commission, said he expects the 1936 total of new industries for metropolitan Toronto to compare with or exceed the 1935 record of 52.

Wilson said most of the new industries are Canadian branch plants of U.S. firms, using Canadian labor and material. He said British companies appeared to be too busy at home to concentrate on the Canadian market, but indicated this situation may change.

Romanian Star 'Strolls' To Freedom

LONDON (AP) — Ion Opris, Romania's Olympic track star, escaped his Communist homeland after making up his mind only 30 seconds before the start of the 120-yard hurdles race.

While 25,000 British sports fans cheered the winner at the AAA championships at White City Stadium Saturday, he took a stroll for freedom.

To the crowd, it was just another race. The 27-year-old athlete, after he had made his decision, envisaged it was a "race to freedom."

The plan to escape his Communist chaperones was cooked up on the spur of the moment, Ion said, while he was limbering up for the hurdles race. He was approached by a man who identified himself as the editor of the Free Romanian Press Agency operating in London.

FINISHED FOURTH

"I told him simply I wanted to get away," the young runner said. He finished fourth. Some people felt sorry for him, but Ion wasn't sorry.

"I remember hardly anything about the race," he said. "all I knew as I jumped the last hurdle, was that the prize for me was liberty."

"I slipped quietly back to the starting line," he said, "and put on my blue track jumper — the one I was to have worn at this year's dressing room for a shower and quick change. Making sure I was not being followed, I made straight for the stadium exit."

There he was met by the representative of the Free Romanian Press Agency who hurried him into hiding.

RUN, RUN, RUN

Red Cagers 'Half-Pint Squirts'

NEW YORK (AP) — Russian basketball players are half-pint squirts who can leap like bullfrogs and run like the wind, but they won't beat the United States in the Melbourne Olympics.

That's the first hand report brought back from Europe today by Walter Kennedy, world-girdling publicist for Abe Saperstein's Harlem Globetrotters. Kennedy's travels have given him periodic looks at the Soviet cagers.

"In fact, just before returning home I got stuck at an airport in Copenhagen with the entire Russian team," he said. "Through an interpreter we had some interesting chats."

"This is an entirely new team, not a member from the squad that went to the finals against the United States at Helsinki. It's the team they're planning to send to the Olympics."

"They grab the ball, throw it a mile and run like crazy. They run, run, run. They no longer try any of that play-pattern, freeze stuff they pulled on the Americans in 1952."

Kennedy said the Russians have learned none of the modern American techniques of one-handed jump shots and outside shooting.

"Our men, who will have a big edge in height, also are much more poised and much smoother with their pass patterns," he added. "We should win easily."

SEEK GLOBAL TITLE

Baseball Popular In Holland

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Followers of baseball which was imported from the United States 50 years ago and encouraged by Canadian soldiers here during the First World War, are all excited because their team is going to play in Milwaukee.

The sport has been winning new fans by the hundreds in recent years and finally made Dutch front pages this week when Holland won the European championship and the right to enter this fall's "global tournament" in Milwaukee. They will meet teams from Canada, Japan, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Colombia and the U.S.

The game is nothing new in Holland. A Dutch fan introduced it almost 50 years ago. In 1912, the Dutch Baseball Association was formed, and during the First World War four Dutch clubs played in a league with interned Canadian soldiers.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

New Victoria Outboard Club For Families, Not Speedsters

Phenomenal growth in the popularity of outboard pleasure craft in the Greater Victoria area finally has resulted in the formation of the brand new Victoria Outboard Club, exclusively for the pleasure boaters.

"Our main objectives are to secure more, better and cheaper berthing for outboard runabouts and cruisers, and to have more launching ramps built on Vancouver Island," said Harry Adams, commodore.

Well known as a former driver of mboard racers, and now owner of an outboard cruiser, Mr. Adams heads an executive consisting of Frank Bayliss, vice-commodore; Wilfred Hughes, secretary, and Reg Williams, treasurer.

A constitution has been drawn and membership applications are available at 835 Yates street and from members of the executive.

Already the club has arranged to lease wharfage on a 12-month basis, on the understanding that members will make their own improvements to the facilities.

"We also hope to make arrangements through the club for more economical insurance for our boats," Mr. Adams said.

By DON INGHAM

This new club is open to any one owning an outboard-powered boat of any size, speed or hull design, but is strictly a cruising and fishing club.

It is entirely separate from other organizations, such as the outboard section of the Capital City Yacht Club, and the older and well-known Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association.

"The latter is purely a racing organization, and we are a family club," said Mr. Hughes.

A member of the club's ramp committee with chairman Ron Bissenden and Peter Nash, Mr. Hughes said the establishment of launching ramps for small craft has priority in the club's activities.

"There are hundreds of owners of small boats on trailers, and the only two ramps for launching are at Oak Bay and Esquimalt," Mr. Hughes said. "We hope to see additional ramps built in the Sidney area, at Deep Cove and at other spots along our shoreline."

"Then we want to see them built farther up-Island. Many tourists bring their own boats with them, and drive for miles without finding a suitable place to put it in the water," he said.

Activities proposed for the summer season are club outings and predicted log races.

During the winter the officers hope to start a series of talks on navigation, show moving pictures and undertake a program of motor maintenance with Fred Graham, leading outboard racer here, as lecturer.

30 Million Mexicans

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Mexico's population has passed the 30,000,000 mark, the bureau of statistics disclosed. Mexico has had a rapid population growth since 1930 when there were 16,500,000 inhabitants. The sharp increase has been attributed to a big reduction in the infant mortality rate.

British Columbia Packers Ltd. had a consolidated net income of $1,470,853—equivalent to three cents on each sales dollar—for the year ending March 31 last, according to the 28th annual report issued today.

This earning is $21,855 less than in the previous year and was realized after providing depreciation of $959,445, bond interest of $234,986, taxes on income of $1,300,000, and portion of income applicable to minority shareholders of subsidiary companies of $116,787.

Of the net income of $1,470,853, the sum of $423,837 was distributed to shareholders as dividends.

Sales and other income have increased from $33,903,093 in 1953 to $48,755,639 in 1956.

During the year the company invested in the shares of Coast Oyster Co., a U.S. corporation which cultivates large oyster farms in Washington and California.

With this investment, the company received exclusive sales and distribution rights in the U.S. and Canada for the fresh and frozen oyster production of Coast Oyster Co.

Survey Planned On Licensing Of Power Boats

OTTAWA — The House of Commons committee completed its study Tuesday of a bill amending the Canada Shipping Act, the most important change being a provision to licence at least 200,000 pleasure power boat operators in Canada.

Regulations will not be drawn up until after the legislation is passed by Parliament. There has been no decision yet, for instance, on the age limits for licensed operators or even what types of boats will be included.

The new legislation is designed to meet many complaints from the public that some power boat operators drive recklessly and endanger swimmers and operators of other small boats such as canoes and rowboats.

Leopold Langlois, parliamentary assistant to Transport Minister Marier, said his department will obtain the views of all interested parties, such as yacht clubs and boat manufacturers, before the regulations are drawn up. This would be done this fall by means of a questionnaire.

George Hahn (S.C. New Westminster) urged that the government stop the sale of lifejackets and other lifesaving equipment not stamped as government-approved.

Gold Coast Government Re-Elected

ACCRA, Gold Coast (Reuters).—The government Convention People's party today was assured of victory in the Gold Coast's general elections.

Latest partial returns show the party already has won 53 of the 104 seats in the colony's assembly.

The opposition Northern People's party and the National Liberation Movement each have won eight seats.

Prime Minister Dr. Kwame Nkrumah has himself been re-elected.

The election is for a government to determine the type of constitution the Gold Coast will have when it achieves independence.

The ruling Convention People's party wants a centrally-controlled government. The opposition National Liberation Movement wants a federation of three equal provinces each with a good degree of regional autonomy.

RIGID PROTOCOL 'ARCHAIC, LAUGHABLE'

Cut in Royal Family Schedule Suggested By London Tabloid

LONDON (UP).—The Daily Mirror of London said today that the time has come to change the rules and stop the Royal Family turning out in force to greet visiting dignitaries.

The tabloid said the practice is wasteful and archaic. And it said that whoever draws up the Royal Family's schedule for such occasions ought to start revising it.

The Mirror has sniped in the past at the rigid royal protocol which binds Queen Elizabeth II and her family in their daily life. Today it seized upon the visit of King Faisal of Iraq to suggest that something should be done about pruning the royal engagements list now.

"There was a superb turnout at Victoria Station," the Mirror said in commenting on the King's arrival in London Monday.

OVERDOING IT

"The Queen was there. So was the Duke (of Edinburgh). And the Queen Mother. And Princess Margaret. And the Duchess of Gloucester. And the Duchess of Kent. The Duke of Gloucester was already on parade.

"Now isn't all this overdoing it?" the Mirror asked.

No Refueling

WASHINGTON (AP).—A Senate sub-committee has disclosed the navy's first atomic-powered submarine, Nautilus, has cruised almost 50,000 miles without refueling. The figure was mentioned at a closed session of the armed services sub-committee June 29 and made public in testimony just released. It was on Jan. 17, 1955, that the 3,000-ton Nautilus first put to sea under nuclear power.

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

A young, charming singer with a youthful, pleasant lyric soprano voice presented a song recital Tuesday night at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

Marjorie J. Patterson was heard for the first time in her home town after spending the past five years studying voice production in Minneapolis. The recital was arranged by the Victoria Musical Art Society, Miss Patterson having been a former intermediate group member and past president.

Assisting artist was John Sawyer of the first violin section of the Victoria Symphony and its youngest member.

Miss Patterson, securely accompanied by Margery Vaughan, despite a faulty keyboard, sang a program which included such items as Arne's "Preach Not Me Your Musty Rules," the Alleluia from Mozart's "Exultate Jubilate," some early Italian arias, a brief lieder group, including Schubert's "Trout," and songs in English by Hageman, Speaks Curran, German and Watts.

While her voice has no considerable range or power, it has a pure, lilting quality and a delicate, silvery tone that charms the ear. Her phrases are musical and while pitch was, at moments, shaky, this may have been due to the faulty piano. Her enunciation, notably in the English songs, was satisfactory. John Sawyer is a young man of whom much may be expected. He has a fairly good degree of technical assurance and a natural affinity for his instrument.

He plays with intelligence and in a musicianly manner, using his bow with considerable fluency and boldness. He had an artistic accompanist in Joanne Dawson.

His numbers included a Pergolesi Sonata, the Bruch "Kol Nidre" and "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler.

Survey Finds B.C.'s Debt Skyrocketing

Indirect Debt of $98.8 Million Added to $194.8 Million Direct

TORONTO (CP).—A Canadian research team reported Tuesday the 10 provinces spent themselves 35 per cent further into the red between 1947 and 1956, but the birth rate and dollar depreciation will make it easier to pay the bills than it was nine years ago.

The privately-financed, 37-year-old Citizens' Research Institute of Canada said in an eight-page survey of provincial public debt that the 10 governments were probably $2,500,000,000 in the hole by March 31, 1955. This compared with $1,817,000,000 at March 31, 1947—an increase of 35 per cent.

Indirect debt, which is an other matter, jumped from $220,500,000 in 1947 to $1,511,000,000 or about six times. Indirect debt is represented by private spending which the government underwrites on the understanding that the venture eventually will be able to handle principal and interest repayment. But it also embraces outlays by school boards and municipalities.

LESS THAN 9 PER CENT

The institute said that although the direct debt had risen 35 per cent, the population had climbed considerably in the nine-year period.

"Consequently the growth in the net direct debt has been much more gradual when viewed on a per capita basis. From a per capita average of $145.09 in 1947, the amount had risen to only $157.71 as of March 31, 1955.

"In per capita terms, in other words, the increase was less than 9 per cent."

To take the comparison a little further, it added, fluctuations in the value of the dollar were such that "it is obvious the weight of the debt burden per person has actually lightened considerably."

British Columbia's net direct debt at March 31, 1955, stood at $194,800,000, compared with $152,200,000 at the same period in 1947. However, the two figures don't give an accurate picture of the trend since the figure jumped to $256,800,000 in 1952 and was above $200,000,000 from 1950-1954 inclusive.

The fluctuation in B.C.'s per capita direct debt has been less. It stood at $145.90 in 1947 and $149.24 in 1955 after reaching a peak for the eight-year period of $214.32 in 1952.

Significantly, 1955 was the first year that B.C.'s per capita direct debt dropped below the average for all the provinces—$149.24 to $157.71.

The province's indirect debt skyrocketed from a scant $5,800,000 in 1947 to $38,800,000 in 1955, a jump matched only by Manitoba, which went from $1,500,000 to $27,300,000.

The survey showed the per capita debt was "well under" $100 in Newfoundland, Alberta and Quebec.

TOP PLAYGROUND MODELS FOR DOWNTOWN DISPLAY

Central Park's model of the Swiftsure yacht race, and Beacon Hill's model home, top entries in the city playground's sandbox contest, will be on view for public voting at Eaton's department store Thursday.

Honorable mention went to Hollywood park youngsters, for their sandbox model of Butchart Gardens. Other entries were Banfield's new Point Ellice bridge, James Bay's model of Macdonald Park, and Oaklands' Kiwanis village.

"The parks have encouraged a fine constructive effort," said judges. "It's amazing what children can do with the right leadership."

Judging were Arnold Webb, chamber of commerce; Herb Warren, city parks administrator; Wally Fletcher and Don Forrest of Eaton's, and Gordon Hartley, city playgrounds director.

Models will be displayed on Eaton's third floor, Thursday to Saturday. Winner of the public vote will receive the T. Eaton Shield.

Grizzly Tackles Lyons' Trailer

BY DON INGHAM

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Lyons, 1334 Monterey, learned the hard way this month that children are not appreciative in any way of the efforts made by their parents to guard them from the terrors and pitfalls of life.

Their hair-raising adventure started when Mr. Lyons, well-known naturalist-author and Mrs. Lyons and Susan set off up the Alaska Highway in their half-ton truck with small modern house on the back. Purpose of the trip was to study several proposed park areas for the parks and recreation division of the B.C. Forest Service, and establish boundaries for them.

"But Susan woke up, remained calm, quite enjoying the situation, and rebuked us for calling the nice old bear so many names," Mr. Lyons wrote to the Times in a letter received here today.

Ben Sets Sights On Lake Ontario

Plans Hinge on Swim Outcome Here Saturday

Muir in Strait Try Saturday Too

PREPARING TO LAUNCH a sea boat on board the Halifax-based frigate HMCS Outrament, is Cadet Robert A. Food, 19, Victoria, who recently completed a UNTD training cruise along the Atlantic seaboard. The four-month cruise has included visits to London and Scotland. Cadet Food, now stationed on the HMCS Hochelaga, near Montreal, will return home August 18. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Food, 1081 Roslyn Road. This fall he will commence his third year of commerce at UBC.

Ben's bid Saturday will be one of two, both by highly-rated and Strait-tested swimmers. Keeping company with Ben will be bearded Bill Muir of Saanich, who will be making "number nine or 10, I can't remember now."

Laughren plans to leave the Breakwater at 10 Saturday morning and to swim in almost a direct line in the direction of Port Angeles.

He will have Stan Page for a navigator aboard the Mito, owned by Morris Wilkinson. Trainer Ove Witt will keep tabs on Laughren from the coaching boat.

Muir, who electrified Victorians a week ago Sunday with a brilliant and courageous attempt that ended heartbreakingly, only a mile and a half from shore, said today, "It looks like I'm becoming a part of that water out there."

"I keep trying these swims and every failure gives me new experience that helps me the next time out."

Muir's plans have not yet been completed. He said that his swim probably would start around noon from Saxe Point, where Bert Thomas, only man to swim the Strait, ended his victorious swim last summer.

Publication of the B.C. Centennial Anthology by Toronto firm of McClelland and Stewart was officially endorsed by the directors of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The publication, which will contain 60 per cent new writing in its estimated 500 pages, will be the most comprehensive work of its kind on British Columbia, its people and history ever issued, if the ambitions of the advisory editorial board are fulfilled.

The board comprises eight of B.C.'s leading publicists: Roderick Haig Brown; Seth Halton, publisher of the Victoria Colonist; Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Victoria Daily Times; Wilfrid Ireland, provincial archivist; Stuart Keate, Victoria Daily Times publisher; Barry Mather and Eric Nicol, of the Vancouver Sun and Vancouver Province, respectively.

It will be assisted by a sub-committee, and production will be under the managing editorship of T. K. Willis of Victoria.

FOUR CATEGORIES

Original contributions are solicited in any or all of the four categories: fiction, historical or contemporary non-fiction and poetry.

For the top contribution in any of the categories a prize of $1,000 will be awarded, with $500 going to the article or verse judged second-best.

All other accepted contribution will be paid for at the rate of at least four cents a word for prose and a minimum of $25 for poems.

Manuscripts must be in the hands of the editor by Jan. 31, 1957, legibly typed on one side of the paper and double-spaced. They must be mailed, unfolded, addressed to "The B.C. Centennial Anthology Committee, Box 1026, Victoria," and be accompanied by a self-addressed.

Victoria's Ben Laughren, who will make his sixth attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca Saturday, hopes to challenge Lake Ontario next.

Laughren told The Times today if he is successful Saturday, he will head east next week to start three to four weeks of intensive training. He hopes to duplicate Marilyn Bell's epic conquest of the chilly, dangerous Lake Ontario.

Laughren said: "We have high hopes for Saturday's swim and if that one comes off, we head for Toronto next week to try the Lake."

"If we go and train for three or four weeks, we will need about $4,000 so we are looking for a sponsor. The Cherry Bank Hotel and Wilson's Frozen Foods are sponsoring Saturday's swim but after that, we will have to start hunting again."

22 Polio Cases In B.C., Down From Last Year

Cut May Be Due To Salk or Cycle

There have been 22 cases of Polio in British Columbia this year compared with 51 last year, a spokesman for the provincial health department reported today.

"It is too early yet to say just how much Salk vaccination has contributed to the drop," the spokesman said.

"Doctors point out that B.C. has had a heavy incidence of polio for a number of years and it seems to go in cycles so this year's drop may be part of the cycle."

This year 176,000 B.C. children have received first shots of Salk vaccine. Last year 45,142 children received the vaccine. Of all children in B.C. last year, 38,130 were eligible for vaccination. Of those who accepted 14,865 were five-year-olds; 22,951 six-year-olds; 7,526 were seven-year-olds.

Of the total group, 43,250 completed the scheduled three injections.

The spokesman said last year's studies showed that in the five, six and seven-year-old groups, 12,488 children did not get any Salk vaccine and in that group there were 10 cases of polio.

"Therefore there were no cases in the group which did receive vaccination," the spokesman said. "It may be concluded that use of the vaccine prevented 36 cases of paralytic polio which otherwise would probably have occurred."

Pens for Technical Work Useful at Office, at Home

By PENNY SAVER

Can I interest you in a felt-tipped pen that will write on metal, glass, wood, plastic, paper or cellophane? Interested? Curious? It's a pen meant especially for business and industries and comes complete with four interchangeable, different-shaped felt nibs that are held in place by friction. For addressing crates and cartons, marking metal containers and bins, for inspection and identification in offices and warehouses or for use by commercial artists, food store owners or merchants, this pen is new and handy, and will be used wherever permanent or temporary signs or markings are necessary. In a box with the pen and nibs come special instructions. It costs $5.50. Ink, that comes in self-dispensing containers, is black, orange, red, blue, green, yellow, brown, purple, white or silver, in two-ounce to one-gallon containers.

For general marking and drawing, use transparent ink, a clear, waterproof, instant-drying ink that's fade-resistant and permanent. Non-clogging, it won't rub off and colors may be blended for desired shade. It's permanent on painted or enamel surfaces but can be removed from fabric and non-porous surfaces with a special flo-master cleanser. For a more durable paint that will stand up under severe weather conditions, use the semi-opaque ink.

Another interesting pen is the German-made rapidograph designed for use in drafting, lettering, art work, music and carbon copies. This pen can be used with writing or drawing ink, and is non-clogging. A strictly technical pen, it has a pin-point writing end, so that a clear, well-defined impression is made, even through numerous car-

bons. Fine notes of music, and thin touches on some art work are no longer a problem. Get a rapidograph. One costs $4.50.

Serve Salads For Summer

Salads are a must for your hot weather meal planning. Here is one for special occasions... the popular "Di Cicco" salad. It's a Caesar-type salad, using lemon juice, anchovies, eggs and Parmesan cheese.

DI CICCO SALAD

Four quarts romaine, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cracked black pepper, 1 cup croutons, 1/2 cup garlic oil, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice, 1 codded egg, 2 tablespoons chopped anchovies, 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Toss romaine with salt and pepper in salad bowl, then form a bed with croutons in centre. Over this pour dressing made from garlic oil (2 to 3 cloves soaked in oil), Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Toss lightly. Add the codded egg (boiled 1 minute) and anchovies. Complete tossing salad while sprinkling Parmesan cheese over all.

Crusty brown pieces of oven fried chicken become a gourmet dish when served with a thin, sour cream gravy accented with chunks of ripe olives and slivered roasted almonds. Serve with steamed rice and a simple green vegetable.

Busy Schedule for Fashion Editor At New York Press Week Showings

(Nona Damaske, Times Fashion Editor, in New York for the 25th National Press Week, reports fashion's latest styles for fall to Victoria readers.)

By NONA DAMASKE

Never have I spent such a hectic day. One fabulous collection of fashions followed another and, surprisingly enough, each designer introduced new touches and different versions of the fall fashion picture.

We began a busy day with the Crompton Jam Session: a delightful breakfast showing of midday fashions in velvet, corduroy and velvet. Slim, western pants in black novelty chevron corduroy were combined with a long-sleeved white shirt and there was an elegant "at home" robe in warm, burnt orange pinwale corduroy. For the cocktail hour there were dressy sheaths of Lyons velvet, and full-skirted velvets for dancing.

LASTING FASHION

B. H. Wragge features clothes from a "long term" point of view. Shakespeare said:

"Fashion wears out more apparel than the man," but Mr. Wragge feels that, in the fashion world,

"Time and space have been telescoped; climates and seasons have been equalized. Wom-

every State in the Union. A close-fitting short jacket of black wool completed this smart daytime costume.

Herbert Sondheim is the "fair-haired boy" as far as fashion editors are concerned. He commented his own show, and the ovation was terrific. He is a deeply-tanned, grey-haired man with a very pleasing personality. He announced that his collection is unique in the respect that there is no hint of "My Fair Lady" stylings, which are being featured this fall.

His collection of black dresses was most outstanding. The early evening dress was more understated than the cocktail dress we have known in previous seasons. The bare top look seems to be fast disappearing, even for gala formal occasions. Fresh importance is given to the costumes, first by a new "top secret" fashion... exemplified by a brown straw tweed costume with a short jacket buttoned up over a finely-tucked cafe au lait blouse of silk chiffon.

Australian Girl Found Adventure In Europe; Now She's in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Elizabeth Power, 24-year-old traveller from Brisbane, Australia, has compiled an adventure-packed diary that includes dining with an Italian count and staying overnight in a Swedish jail.

The vivacious, blue-eyed brunette, who arrived in Ottawa six months ago, now is working with the Indian Affairs branch of the government here.

But it's not the end of the road by any means. She told a reporter she still hopes to see Canada's west before returning to Australia in time for the Olympic Games in Melbourne starting Nov. 22.

"It's going to be wonderful to get home, but it's going to be jolly hard to settle down," she said.

No wonder. In the last 2½ years Elizabeth's travels have taken her to Britain, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Spain, Yugoslavia and Italy, to name a few ports of call.

WORKED WAY AROUND

With two companions, she worked as a maid in a Cornwall, England, resort. After a stint as a typist in a London office, she went to Brussels, "dressed to the teeth."

Glamor togs soon gave way to walking shoes and a knapsack as Elizabeth and friends she met along the way hitchhiked and hostelized from country to country.

In a tiny Swedish village, crowded with convention delegates, she stayed at the village jail—as an overnight guest, with dinner and a new feather mattress provided before her keepers locked her in for the night.

Hitch-hiking through Italy, a young count offered Elizabeth and three Australian companions a drive. He also took them to his castle to meet his mother, a marchioness, who insisted on reserving hotel rooms for the travelers and paying the entire bill, Elizabeth said.

Goodwill also abounded in Yugoslavia, when the four girls found themselves stranded in a country area and faced with the prospects of sleeping in an open field.

But a Yugoslav farmer and his wife saw the girls and insisted they sleep in their house. Elizabeth's urge to wander began when she was 17, a high school graduate who had never strayed far from home.

Pink candles flanked the table centre. The bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. J. Smithson, her sister, Miss Carol Smithson, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. C. McNeill, received corsages when they arrived. ## Robin Anne Grant Wed In Annapolis Royal

Of interest to friends and family in Victoria is the wedding of Miss Robin Anne Grant of this city to Sub-Lieut. Ernest Bennett Larkin, HMCS Cornwallis, Cornwallis, N.S., in a ceremony in St. Thomas' Church, Annapolis Royal, N.S. Rev. P. E. Miller, OMI, P.P., officiated at the wedding which took place in a setting of red and white roses.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grant, 2639 Cedar Hill road, was given in marriage by her father, and was gowned in nylon organza fashioned with a floor-length, bouffant skirt posed over hoops and Peter Pan collar. Her shoulder length veil mistled from a coronet of pearls and rhinestones. Pink rosebuds and white Scottish heather, tied with Grant tarian ribbon, topped the prayer book she carried.

Mrs. Allan McRae of Dartmouth was matron of honor for her cousin, and was gowned in a pale pink nylon over net dress in ballerina length. Her bouquet was of yellow gladioli centred with Esther Reed daisies, matching a circlet in her hair.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Larkin, Morel, P.E.I., had his brother, Stephen Larkin of Dartmouth, as best man.

At Queen Hotel in Annapolis Royal, the newlyweds received guests, following the ceremony. Summer flowers decorated the room. Father Miller, who had performed the wedding service, proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling, the bride wore a pale blue crystal sheer dress topped with a navy bengaline duster. Her accessories were white and blue, and her corsage of white gladioli.

Following a honeymoon spent travelling on Prince Edward

For Summer Meal-Planning Change Try This Fluffy Lobster Souffle

The crusty lobster has little claim to good looks. Beneath his sea-going armor, however, there is hidden beauty in the form of delicate pink and white meat. In most localities, lobster meat is readily obtainable in canned form and it is a handy item to have on hand when unexpected guests arrive, or for occasions when you wish to give the family a special treat. Try it some time in a fluffy souffle. The home economists of Canada's department of fisheries have sent us the following tested recipe for a lobster souffle which they recommend serving with a crisp, green salad and hot meat and break into fairly small pieces, taking care to remove the cartilage lodged in the meat of the claws. Add lobster to sauce. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold the cooled sauce into the beaten egg whites and combine thoroughly. Pour into an ungreased 6-cup casserole. Place casserole in a shallow pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven at 350° F. for 45 minutes or until set, puffed and lightly browned. Serve immediately. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

Lobster Souffle—2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, ½ cup mayonnaise, 3 egg yolks, 1 (5 or 6 oz.) can lobster and 3 egg whites.

Melt butter. Blend with flour and salt, then add milk. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in mayonnaise and egg yolks which have been whipped until light in color. Drain the lobster

Try Baking Soda Bath To Relieve a Sunburn

Summer can mean miseries for the small folk in your family, particularly those between the ages of five and twelve. It's hard to control them at outdoor play, and before you know it they've collected a bad burn. Or all the vigorous activity in the sun may cause prickly heat. Then there's poison ivy, poison oak and sumac. Even though you've taught them the meaning of these innocent looking leaves, they'll get so absorbed in their game that they'll run or tumble through them.

An ounce of precaution is still worth a pound of cure . . . so if you can, corral them onto the porch after they've been out in the sun a half hour or so. Make sure that all the poisonous plants on your property have been cleared away. There are many good sprays today that effectively kill them. And before picking a picnic site, case the area thoroughly for any signs of any one of the three.

Should all your precautions fail and your young one comes down with one of these common summer complaints, there's a pleasant, painless remedy that the youngster won't object to. It's a baking soda bath. Add a half-pound of the soda to a tubful of cool water and let the youngster soak. It might be wise to remove wash cloth and other cleaning tools, for out of habit they may be apt to scrub and scrubbing further irritates the already tender skin. It isn't necessary, anyway, even if they're grubby, for soda is a mild detergent that whisks dirt away. Go easy on the toweling, too . . . just pat dry.

Steel, Union Open New Talks To End Strike

No Indication Of Capitulation

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The steel industry's big three, back after a one-day secret conference in New York, resumed negotiations today with the steelworkers to end the 18-day strike. Negotiators set the talks with nothing to indicate either side would substantially alter its position.

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP)

—The eyes of Canada's steel industry turned to Hamilton today as a conciliation board met to consider a contract dispute between the United Steelworkers Union and the Steel Company of Canada.

The union has charged Stelco with stalling negotiations pending the outcome of the U.S. steel strike.

Stelco is the chief producer of Canadian steel and usually leads the way for other Canadian steel companies.

In Toronto, the Ontario Labor Relations Board scheduled a hearing today on the legality of the spread of the U.S. strike to Canada. Marmon Mining, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel, is asking the board to declare a sympathy strike against it illegal.

Union Drawn Steel of Hamilton will make a similar application Thursday.

The union claims the walk-outs are stoppages resulting from the companies' announcements that their contracts had expired. The contracts were negotiated in the United States to cover American and Canadian employees.

RE-WED HUBBY PROVES TO BE RECIDIVIST

CHESTER, England (AP)—On April 28, 1953, Mrs. Lillian divorced Humphrey James on the grounds that he had misbehaved with Irene Mansel.

On April 4, 1955, James having promised to be good, Mrs. James remarried him. On Monday Mrs. James won a second divorce on the grounds that Humphrey had misbehaved again—with Miss Mansel.

Bridge Work Delayed At Second Narrows

Deputy Minister of Highways Evan Jones has denied that the company operating the old Second Narrows Bridge in Vancouver is "needlessly obstructing work" on the new span.

The charge came from a spokesman for contractors and engineers on the $16,000,000 span being built by the provincial government. But Jones said the delay in building two piers for the new bridge is caused by the slowness of the Board of Transport Commissioners in giving permission.

He said: "We have certain rules and regulations to abide by with regard to the Board of Transport Commissioners and that's all that's taking place."

Jones had no comment on a statement by North Vancouver Mayor Charles Cates that the old bridge will undergo government tolls when the new bridge is opened. Highways Minister Gagliardi was in the northern

U.S. ORDERS CURFEW ON TROOPS IN GERMANY

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP)—The U.S. Army imposed a curfew today on its 250,000 troops in Germany in an effort to curb crime.

An order issued by Gen. Henry I. Hodes, commander of the U.S. Army in Europe, requires soldiers to be in their quarters by midnight on evenings prior to duty days and by 1 a.m. on evenings prior to non-duty days.

"This command has been increasingly disturbed in recent weeks by unfortunate incidents involving American soldiers and German civilians," Hodes said.

Pipeline Has Only Quarter of Steel

Trans-Canada Officials 'Concerned'
Over Deadline Date for Prairie Link

CALGARY (CP)—Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. officials are "concerned" about their ability to fulfill the company's promise to complete the western leg of the line from Alberta to Winnipeg by Dec. 31, in view of the current steel strike in the United States.

The company has less than one-quarter of the pipe needed for the 575-mile line and no more will be available until the steel strike is ended.

Under an agreement with Trans-Canada, the federal government has power to seize the line if the western leg is not completed by Dec. 31 and repayment of the $80,000,000 federal loan at five per cent is not made by April 2, 1957.

N. E. Tanner, president of Trans-Canada, said Tuesday in an interview that a "force majeure" clause in the company's contract with the federal government protects it against the penalty of default if the delay in completing the line is caused by "anything over which we have no control."

He implied the U.S. steel strike would come under this heading. Mr. Tanner admitted in statements Tuesday that a wrong impression may have been given to outsiders in statements made in the House of Commons during the bitter pipeline loan debate this spring.

He said his company never claimed to have enough pipe "on hand" to complete the natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Winnipeg.

Trade Minister Howe said during the Commons debate that "they have an option on pipe of the required 34-inch diameter which is presently being stacked outside the pipe mills in the United States."

"Trans-Canada has an option on the only supply of 34-inch pipe available for delivery in time for laying during the 1956 construction season," Mr. Howe said.

Mr. Tanner stated the "man on the street" might have assumed from such a statement that Trans-Canada had actual pipe ready to be delivered.

But persons familiar with the industry would understand the company had an option on pipe to be produced for delivery as needed.

Construction is going ahead on two sections—about 200 miles—of the pipeline.

UNDERGOES SURGERY—Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.S. 8th Army commander in the Korean campaign, underwent an emergency operation for "gangrenous appendicitis" at Gainesville, Florida, Tuesday.

COMMISSIONAIRES DON'T LAUGH

Room With Bath As ked at 'The Buildings'

BY NORMAN CRIBBENS

A woman from down south called at the Legislative Buildings Tuesday and asked for a single room with bath, preferably one overlooking the harbor.

There was nothing particularly unusual about this request. The Corps of Commissioners, who have an inquiry office alongside the main entrance to the Buildings, say they are often mistaken for hotel doormen and the majestic green-domed Buildings for a super-duper hotel.

"Many visitors mistake us for the Empress," says Commissioner Mort Dundas, in charge of the inquiry office.

"We direct them across the road and at the same time invite them to take one of our buildings."

Mr. Dundas, who started the tours four years ago, estimates an average of 230 visitors a day are now taking them. The daily average this month is up on last July, but in June the average was down due to poor weather.

By far the largest number of visitors come from California but this month the visitors' book has also been signed by tourists from Washington, Oregon, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Illinois,

New Jersey, Michigan, New York, Nebraska, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Quebec, England, Scotland, Hawaii, India and Singapore.

Most visitors express admiration for the Legislative Buildings. Many ask to be shown where the Queen stays, apparently under the impression there is a royal suite somewhere under the dome kept in readiness for the Queen should she visit Victoria.

Another little service sometimes required of the commissioners—they are asked to show visitors the crown jewels.

"Whatever the inquiry we never laugh at it," Mr. Dundas said. "Our job is to make visitors feel at home and we treat them as we would wish to be treated if we visited their home cities."

Chief Big Offender

BAMBERG, West Germany (Reuters)—A court here jailed former city Police Chief Karl Koestner for nine months and fined him 300 marks for traffic offences and misuse of office. Koestner, 50, was found guilty of dangerous driving while drunk.

old David dreams most about finding a new home.

Can you help?
David—that's not his real name—is now being cared for by the Family and Children's Service, 1951 Cook, which is seeking a home for him where he can begin a new life.

For this boy has memories of a strained and unhappy home which need to be forgotten.

Fortunately, he carries few scars from his experience. He is a healthy, friendly boy with a keen intelligence. He is not a delinquent.

What David needs and longs for is a father whom he can look up to and respect and a father who will take an active interest in developing his above-average potential.

Above all, he must have understanding parents who will give him love and affection and a security that was lacking in his first home.

Industrious in both work and play, David scores top marks at school and is upset when he has to miss classes.

He likes sports and the outdoors and recently made himself a creditable bow and arrow set.

His dream of becoming a mountie is tied in with a love of airplanes so, logically, he wants to become a flying RCMP constable in the north.

In short, David is a boy with few problems who needs only a home with parents who can guide him into a new and happier life.

Finding the right home is the key to his development. Social workers at the Family and Children's Service point to case histories of children passing through the agency to illustrate the value of a secure home.

"Teddy" was committed for care in October, 1951, when he was eight.

In the last five years he has not been able to find a permanent home and through a succession of placements has steadily become more of a problem.

Contrast this with the ease of "Bobby" who was taken into care at the age of seven in April, 1955, after his mother committed suicide.

He moved into a country home where the couple had always wanted a son and fitted in immediately. Six months later, when his own father continued to show no interest, consent for adoption was granted.

It is this type of home the agency is seeking for David.

Preferably there should be no children of his own age in the home. This boy should not be sought as a companion for another son or daughter. He should be wanted for himself.

David has a European background and is Roman Catholic. If you can help, the agency asks that you call 25121.

Graphic Artists In Lively Show

By GWLADYS DOWNES

The lively exhibition of graphic arts at the Greater Victoria Arts Gallery this week will be of interest both to the professional and the amateur. Silk-screen prints, monotypes, linocuts, etchings, wood-engravings and examples of even more complicated processes are on display.

One of the unusual aspects of the exhibition is the emotional power shown by some of the artists in the use of materials which are not traditionally associated with such effects.

Sister Mary Carita, IHM, infuses strong lyrical feeling into her vital silk-screen prints by the use of vibrant tones and carefully controlled rhythms, as in "Visitation," and "Benedictus." There is a Byzantine quality to her work, a dynamic use of color similar to that which one finds in the frescoes of mediaeval Balkan churches. However, "Figures of the Morning of Time," a delicate and original abstract, indicates that her art does not depend entirely on religious themes for its inspiration. Photographs of her working in her studio in Los Angeles add to the interest of the exhibit.

By contrast, it is the human scene which is important to Herbert Siebner and George Swinton, although the latter has experimented also with a religious theme in one instance. In Siebner's recent work, one finds the same competence, the same blend of intellect and emotion, with which Victorians are already familiar. Abstracting the human figure from the natural scene, he uses it to establish dynamic relationships between form and color in a stimulating series of compositions.

George Swinton is an excellent draughtsman as well as being versatile in his use of various graphic media. He can suggest merely by a pose, an expression, a line, the pathos and irony of human experience. I liked best "Seated Man" and "One who could not mask himself," the latter a seated harlequin figure of great strength.

The two Vancouver artists represented are Alistair Bell and J. Hardman. One of the best things in this excellent exhibition is Bell's small wood-engraving

Met Cancels Fall Season

NEW YORK (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera, famed old queen of American musical companies, cancelled the 1956-57 season Tuesday night because of a labor squabble.

The cancellation ordered Tuesday night came in an argument over dual jobs held by Robert Herman, 31-year-old son of former Brooklyn Dodger baseball player Babe Herman.

Young Herman is an assistant stage director and also an assistant to the artistic director. He is a union member in the first job but not in the second.

The Met's statement said: "The association has taken the position that everyone who does an AGMA job must be an AGMA member and at the same time challenge the right of management personnel to be members of AGMA."

The opening of the new season, a gala social event each year, had been scheduled for Oct. 29.

15 Million Jobless

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Between 12 and 18 per cent of Indonesia's 80,000,000 population are unemployed, according to estimates of the employment service of the ministry of labor. The service says that the figure might be as high as 15,000,000.

Press Licensing Bill Under Fire in Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The Press of censors empowered with the administration of only the loosest and vaguest rules. . . . The council then went on to deal with three complaints which had come before it: 1. It criticized a south London weekly newspaper for suggesting that anti-Semitism was behind a fire in a local synagogue. 2. It admonished The Sunday Pictorial for printing a picture of a child with the clear inference that the child, whose name was given, was illegitimate. 3. It again criticized the London Daily Sketch for approaching by telephone the widow of a man who had just been killed in Cyprus.

Special 'Task Force' Panel To Chart Civil Air Future

MONTREAL (CP)—The International Civil Aviation Organization will establish a special "task force" panel to chart the future of civil aviation for the next 15 years. The project was set in motion by the just-concluded general assembly of the ICAO, convened at Caracas, Venezuela. Delegations from 58 countries authorized the ICAO council to establish a small panel of experts. They will prepare by the end of next year a general civil aviation forecast. The decision was one of a number taken at the general assembly. A report of its actions has been received here. The assembly named Canada one of 21 countries on the new council, which serves till 1959. S. Pollock of Canada is president of its administrative commission. A 1957 budget amounting to $3,567,732 was approved. Russia and the Sudan sent observers to the assembly.

TRAIL — The Trail-Tadana Hospital "has no hope in the world" of operating in the black on the budget set recently by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, board chairman J.H.D. Hargrave said Tuesday.

Mr. Hargrave said the effect of the new budget is to decrease basic hospital revenue from $395,000 last year to $374,000 this year.

HOPE YOURSELF TO NEW HAIR

LONDON (AP)—Dr. S. J. Van Pelt, president of the British Society of Medical Hypnotists, suggested bald-headed men can "hope" themselves into a new head of hair. "Relaxing is probably the best restorer of hair," he said. "Raising hope may even raise hair. Hope yourself into a head of hair," the doctor suggested.

Radio Homing Beacon Saves Pilot's Life

LONDON (CP)—A British-designed miniature radio homing beacon, which is expected to go into operational use with the RCAF later this summer, has successfully passed its first "live" test.

Called Sarah, which stands for search, rescue and homing, the equipment consists of a transmitter which sends radio impulses to guide rescuers to airmen down at sea or in rough land areas.

Tuesday a helicopter flew through dense fog off the east coast of England to rescue the pilot of an RAF Hunter jet fighter after he had been forced to bail out into the sea.

An RAF spokesman said the equipment worked "perfectly." "The helicopter was able to home right to the pilot in the water despite the fog. The equipment undoubtedly saved the pilot's life."

The air ministry described the rescue as the "first real test of Sarah."

Last February the RCAF placed a $800,000 order for Sarah equipment. The homing equipment, normally attached to the parachute or flotation gear of service pilots, is expected to prove particularly useful in uninhabited or uncharted areas such as are found in Canada's northern regions.

A two-way speech unit enables the stranded pilot to talk to the search aircraft after it has "homed" to his immediate vicinity.

Engineers Race Against Time To Widen, Deepen Suez Canal

PORT SAID (Reuters) — Bulldozers eating into the desert are cutting new by-pass channels for the Suez Canal and powerful suction dredgers are widening and deepening this international waterway in a race against time to cope with ever-growing maritime traffic.

The program of improvement now being undertaken at a cost of $45,000,000 is the largest since the construction of the canal. It entails the removal of 140,000,000 cubic yards of soil, equivalent to four-fifths of the volume excavated when the canal was built 90 years ago. It took Ferdinand de Lesseps 10 years to dig his canal. The new work will be finished in under five years.

The fortunes of the canal now hang closely to those of the Middle East oil. By 1960, it is expected that tankers will be of 60,000 and even 80,000 gross tons, and in the next Gulf, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, 10 years annual oil traffic through the canal will reach the 100,000,000-ton mark.

Alberta Oil Development Draws Attention in U.K.

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Telegraph in a front-page dispatch from Calgary says Canada is entering a new phase of expansion as "one of the world's great oil-producing industries" runs from a minimum of 60 per cent up to 90 per cent. "Opinion is widespread in Alberta . . . that British investment capital has missed great opportunities in the Canadian oil industry." The dispatch says areas expected to stand out in the immediate future are Pembina, 70 miles southwest of Edmonton; the Estevan area of southwestern Saskatchewan; and an area running across northern Alberta and northern Saskatchewan.

Marilyn's Diary

Julius Folks!

I guess most people feel a little low when they have to go back to work after a holiday but with a swimmer, at least this swimmer, it's good to get back to work.

I went back to the training routine yesterday and I felt more at home back in the water after the brief holiday coach Gus gave me.

Marilyn

Gus put me through a training swim that lasted a little over an hour yesterday morning, and it seemed like old times with Gus in the training boat, me in the water and all our party, Phyllis Griffiths, Dorothy Howarth, Maria Brenk and Jack Judges coming along to give me moral support.

In fact, it was so much like old times that I gave Jack the usual splash of water that I always give him and, good old Jack, he acted surprised and indignant even though it is the umpteenth time that I have splashed him during a practice swim.

We cracked our old, corny jokes that we keep cracking in all our swims but it is things like that that help make training more fun than work.

After we came out of the water, we rested a bit and then sat down to lunch. Maria and I drove Dorothy out to see her aunt in the afternoon and we returned to our hotel for a little loafing.

Maria said she thought she would like to go in for a dip in front of the hotel and, impulsive me, I told her that if she would stay in for five minutes, I would eat my hat.

Well, Maria went in twice, not just once, and right now I am looking for a recipe to make a bathing cap edible and tasty.

I sat on the rocks in that lovely afternoon sun while Maria was in the water and caught up with a lot of mail to folks back home.

Gus got back into his old movie-going habit. Mind you, he only went to one yesterday. One day in England, he went to three shows in one afternoon. Last night Gus went to the wrestling show as Whipper Billy Watson's guest.

Maria and I went to see the movie, Trapeze, last night and, we enjoyed it very much. After the show we stopped at a drive-in for hamburgers and we were home in bed by 10.

$24 MILLIONS SPENT ON SCRAPPED MISSILE

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney disclosed today that development of the Canadian air-to-air guided missile Velvet Glove, since scrapped in favor of an American weapon, cost nearly $24,000,000.

Mr. Campney maintained in the Commons that the money was well spent because it represented Canada's contribution to "the build-up of know-how."

Mercury Headed For Year's Record

Temperature Expected To Hit Top of 85

Official temperatures were expected to climb as high as 85 today and broil Victoria under the hottest day so far this year.

Between 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. the mercury climbed nine degrees—from 72 to 81; and it was still moving up.

In the downtown area the heat was expected to be even more intense.

Weatherman Bill Mackie says there is no sign of a change for two or three days.

NO RELIEF

Warmth of a blazing sun received no relief early today from the sea; winds blew off-shore and weakly. Sea breezes are expected toward night.

Monday official high was 73, but at 5 p.m. downtown thermometers pointed to 82—one degree less than this year's high of 83 (official) May 30.

Mr. Mackie says the last measurable rainfall occurred July 6.

Total hours of sunshine in July to Monday night was 199.1. This is 65 hours more than at the same date in July last year and 24 hours more than Victoria received all last month.

The warmest-ever July-18 was recorded in 1944 when the mercury climbed to 88.6.

How does the weather affect Victoria?

Royal Jubilee Hospital reports treating one emergency case of severe sunburn and there has been an increase in emergency treatments for strokes and heart attacks—three in one day recently.

Sales of bathing suits, sportswear, soft drinks, ice cream, suntan oil and sun glasses boomed today and Monday—but in other parts of the city business slowed. Golf courses and beaches were crowded.

Shirt-sleeve weather continued to draw tourists and in the cool of evening Monday groups of city visitors were observed peering in windows of closed china and antique shops.

VISITORS JAM CITY

Visitors jammed Victoria today in one of the heaviest transportation, accommodation and restaurant crushes in the city's tourist-centre history.

The Empress Hotel, with 570 rooms, was filled with more than 800 people and expects to be booked solid for the rest of the week at least.

George I. Warren, Victoria and Island Publicity Commissioner, said more than 1,000 persons sought information at the Causeway office Tuesday, nearly as many as on the July 4 U.S. holiday.

RED TANKS ENTER LHASA

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—An

Indian newspaper correspondent today reports Communist Chinese tanks have arrived in the Tibetan capital of Lhasa while heavy fighting continues between Tibetans and their Chinese rulers in the eastern part of the country.

The article published in the Statesman also reports men and women massed to fight the Chinese in north Tibet.

The newspaper's correspondent in Darjeeling, on the main route from India to Tibet, says the arrival of Chinese tanks "had increased tension" in the capital.

He reports traffic disrupted on many of Tibet's main roads by bridge explosions and other sabotage by an organized resistance movement.

Tibet has been under virtual Chinese rule since a Chinese Communist army invaded the country late in 1950 and Communist China took over control of Tibetan foreign policy in May, 1951.

PARK LEADS LUMSDON IN 25-MILE SWIM DUEL

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Defending champion Tom Park pulled ahead of Toronto's Cliff Lumsdon this afternoon in Atlantic City's 25-mile world championship swim.

A ship-to-shore radio report said that both Lumsdon and Park were pulling even with the Danish girl who held the official lead by virtue of the earlier start for female contestants.

Distance covered was estimated at 11 to 12 miles.

Fifth position was held by Muriel Ferguson of Toronto.

Greta Anderson, a Danish girl who now lives in California, appeared headed for the $1,500 first prize for women. She was far ahead of the other female contestants.

GRAIN CONTROLLER POWERS ILLUSIONARY

He's Hamstrung, Says Milner; CPR Admits Orders Ignored

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Controller Roy W. Milner said today his powers are not operative in a practical sense.

He said he wouldn't use them to force the railways to increase the flow of prairie boxcars, because he would have injunctions slapped against him from one end of the country to the other.

If he forced the railways to increase the flow of boxcars for grain, they would say to him: "What commodities do we not haul?"

It would create an "intolerable situation," Mr. Milner told the Commons agriculture committee. Shippers of other commodities, left without shipping facilities, would likely take court action against the transport controller.

Mr. Milner said later he believes there is no one in Canada who can handle the transport controller's job.

He knew when he was licked, he told Walter Tucker (L. Rothern) and that's why he was getting out. Mr. Milner has announced he will resign at the end of the year but will continue on as a member of the board of grain commissioners.

Government Probing Investments By Reds

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today the government is making inquiries to determine whether the Communists may be using Canada as a base from which to invest in American industry.

He was commenting in the Commons for John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) on secret testimony given in Washington by J. S. Armstrong, chairman of the United States securities and exchange commission.

Mr. Armstrong's testimony made public Monday by a Senate internal security sub-committee, said Iron Curtain investors might, by proxy, get directors on U.S. corporations handling secret materials.

Guard Differences Gov. General Warns

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)

—Canada today is in robust economic health, but in a time of material prosperity it is easy to forget intangible things, Governor-General Vincent Massey warned Tuesday.

"Through indifference and the careless neglect of our own heritage... how easily our traditions can suffer from erosion," he said in an address to the joint Canadian Clubs of Prince George.

Mr. Massey arrived at this interior British Columbia city of 14,000 at the confluence of the Nechako and Fraser rivers after a 462-mile train trip from Prince Rupert.

Throughout his tour of B.C. thus far, the Governor-General in his addresses has stressed the importance of each community maintaining a strong individual character and a connection with its historic past.

To the guests at the dinner in this lumbering city, the geographical centre of B.C., he put a request that they act as "guardians of Canadianism."

"Our country is a land of regional communities. Each of them has a strong individual character of its own with communal efforts in the past, a community of interests in the present and collective ambitions and plans for the future," Canada derived strength from the local loyalties which regional communities inspired.

"We are a country which rejects the idea of sameness. We like differences, and I hope we always will."

Khrushchev Attacks Western 'Freedoms'

MOSCOW (UP)—Soviet Communist Party chieftain Nikita S.

Khrushchev Tuesday night derided western concepts of free speech, press and elections and said "nothing could tempt us to rejoin the so-called free world."

Khrushchev delivered his scathing attack on the western world and its ideas of democracy at a glittering reception for the visiting East German delegation in the great Kremlin palace.

"A free world, in the opinion of the monopolists, is one where there is freedom to plunder the people and everything can be run according to the will of the monopolists," Khrushchev said in an impromptu speech.

"This is the same free world from which we freed ourselves 39 years ago, and since then we have built socialism," he said. "Today nothing could tempt us to rejoin the so-called free world."

Khrushchev said that "the bourgeois leaders" claim that

Russia has no freedom of the press and added that the "falsity of such an assertion is obvious."

"They say the press in capitalist countries is free. But can the working class in the capitalist countries make use of the 'free' capitalist press? In the west the organs of the press are at the service of the capitalists while broadcasting and television belong to them entirely.

"The capitalists use all these means as they wish to distort events in a manner most suitable to themselves and to mislead the people," he charged.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O GOD, our refuge and strength, grant us grace to impart strength to someone else today. May we bring help where there is trouble, letting Thy divine presence shine through us to friends and strangers; in Jesus' name. Amen.

25 NEW POLIO CASES IN CHICAGO OUTBREAK

CHICAGO (UP)—Medical authorities today battled the city's mounting polio outbreak with an additional 14,126 hypodermic syringes and needles.

The extra equipment was rushed to the Chicago board of health by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Illinois department of health to bolster a dwindling supply at free inoculation centres.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, reported 25 new polio cases in a 24-hour period to raise the year's total to 194.

Four persons have died from the disease this year compared with two deaths last year when 35 cases occurred during the same period.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

One Hurt, 16 Flee As Ammonia Spills

VANCOUVER (CP)—One man was taken to hospital and 16 other persons were forced into the street Tuesday when an ammonia pipe broke and filled an ice cream plant with liquid and fumes.

Garry Hoskins of nearby South Burnaby suffered burns to his feet and legs when liquid ammonia poured onto the floor of the room where he was working. Other plant workers and office personnel fled the choking ammonia fumes.

An estimated 500 pounds of liquid ammonia escaped and turned into gas when it warmed up. An inhalator squad took four hours to neutralize the escaping ammonia.

The accident is believed to have occurred when a drain valve was snapped off by a workman as he scraped ice from a freezing pipe.

MARITIME MUSEUM—City council will be asked to put up $300,000 as its share in the financing of a $1,250,000 maritime museum in the city's Kitsilano district.

The grant would depend on a guarantee from the Native Sons of B.C. to back the centennial project. The lodge hopes to obtain a $24,000 federal grant and raise the balance with private and public subscriptions.

FIRE HAZARD—B.C. Forest Service rangers reported here Tuesday timbered areas of the upper Fraser Valley are tinder-dry and they termed some parts critical.

With temperatures in the mid 80s, Mission City village commission imposed sprinkling restrictions until further notice. In Matsqui, engineers plan to sink a well in the municipal cemetery and hope to strike artesian water at about 20 feet.

BOY DROWNED—Twelve-year-old David Penner of Matsqui was drowned in Mill Lake here Tuesday night. RCMP said the boy was swimming with his brother when the accident happened.

Neutralist Bloc Formation Seen In Tito Talks

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (UP)—Observers speculated today that a new "third force" in world politics may emerge from today's meeting of the top leaders of three "uncommitted" nations in the cold war.

Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was scheduled to join Yugoslav President Tito and Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a 24-hour conference that may forge a new neutralist bloc poised between the East and the West.

All three have denied such intentions, although each is on record as supporting the philosophy of neutralism in principle. Informed observers said the course of their talk will almost certainly follow such lines, even if they reach no concrete agreements.

Tito and Nasser, who conferred in Belgrade last week, preceded Nehru to Brioni, the Yugoslav president's vacation retreat off the rugged Adriatic coast.

Nehru indicated that the three-way meeting was somewhat of an accident.

"I planned to go to Brioni primarily to meet Tito," the Prime Minister said before leaving Paris today. "I learned later that Nasser would be there."

"It's not the kind of conference to solve any problems," he added. "We will simply discuss things."

2 B.C. Men From Missing Boat Located

Two Ocean Falls, B.C., men reported missing from a damaged 18-foot power boat, brought to Victoria this week on a government survey vessel, have turned up safe. RMCP at the up-coast paper mill town said today Frank Storey and Leo Sepala abandoned the craft. The aluminum hull had been crushed on shoreline rocks while they were sleeping nearby. They hiked back to Ocean Falls and the boat was later found by the survey ship, Marabell.

The craft is being held by federal customs officials here for the owners, an Ocean Falls boat rental firm.

Gerald A. Yardley, official "receiver of wrecks," said today an outboard motor on the boat was still in good shape but the hull is badly damaged.

Marilyn's Future Undecided After Strait

By DENNY BOYD

Marilyn Bell, smallest but most famous of all the Strait of Juan de Fuca swimmers, has not yet made a decision as to whether she will terminate her swimming career after her Strait bid in late August or early September.

Marilyn, currently training in an effort to become the first woman to tame the world-famous Strait, said Tuesday, regarding any retirement plans, "I haven't given the matter any serious consideration and I am not ready yet to make a decision."

McLaughlin To Conciliate Projectionists' Dispute

W. T. McLaughlin of Victoria has been appointed conciliator in a dispute involving 15 projectionists at the Atlas, Dominion, Capitol and Royal Theatres in Victoria.

Parties involved are Famous Players Canadian Corporation Ltd. (B.C. Paramount Theatres Ltd.) and International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators of Canada and the United States, Local 168 Victoria.

A statement from Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said the union is desirous of writing the requirements of a new contributory pension plan into the new agreement.

Mr. McLaughlin will act as conciliator in a similar dispute between Odeon Theatres of Canada Ltd., Vancouver, and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators, Local 168.

Projectionists employed by Odeon theatres of Victoria, Duncan and Ladysmith, and the Plaza Theatre, Victoria, are affected.

Harbor Master Welcomes Check on Oil-Dumping Ships

A federal government plan to use RCAF planes and navy ships as "spotters" in a drive to clear beaches of oil is "excellent," says city harbor master Capt. G. Ronald Newell.

In the past legal entanglements have arisen in proving the source of the oil on beaches. "You may find oil in the vicinity of a ship, but unless there are actual observers, it is difficult to prove which ship dumped the oil," he said.

Oil-dumping will become a crime when amendments to the Canada Shipping Act are passed by the current session of parliament.

At present ships are required to dump ballast water, often contaminated with fuel oil, off Race Rocks before entering the harbor. According to the proposed regulations, ballast water must be dumped 50 miles out to sea, or into "sumps" or storage tanks ashore, where the oil will be reclaimed before the water is pumped back into the sea.

"Oil-dumping is not a serious problem here," Capt. Newell said "but the government's plan is a step in the right direction."

TRIO OF CITY SWIMMERS HELP MARILYN TO TRAIN

Marilyn Bell had company during her practice swim at Oak Bay this morning.

Three teen-aged youngsters plunged into the water with Marilyn and acted as unofficial pacers until the cold water forced them out. The youngsters were Sally Holland, 14; Bruce Warburton, 15, and Douglas Dickie, 14.

Marilyn swam for two hours this morning, going out as far as Trial Island where she swam through a two-mile-an-hour rip tide. Coming back she had to plough through several eddies but sprinted through them with a 72-beat stroke.

TOO CLOSE TO NATURE

Grizzly Tackles Lyons' Trailer

BY DON INGHAM

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Lyons, 1354 Monterey, learned the hard way this month that children are not appreciative in any way of the efforts made by their parents to guard them from the terrors and pitfalls of life.

They went through considerable mental anguish a week ago on the Alaska Highway trying to keep their four-year-old daughter, Susan, from finding out that a huge grizzly bear was trying to rip their mobile home into tatters.

"But Susan woke up, remained calm, quite enjoying the situation, and rebuked us for calling the nice old bear so many names," Mr. Lyons wrote to the Times in a letter received here today.

Their hair-raising adventure started when Mr. Lyons, well-known naturalist-author and Mrs. Lyons and Susan set off up the Alaska Highway in their half-ton truck with small modern house on the back. Purpose of the trip was to study several proposed park areas for the parks and recreation division of the B.C. Forest Service, and establish boundaries for them.

AWOKE WITH BANG

At about 2 a.m. one morning, he wrote, at a campsite in a large gravel quarry, "there was a loud bang at the back door, then a scrambling around at the cab of the truck. I thought it must be some irresponsible character prowling around and peered through the curtains. All I could see was bear! He clawed at one of the truck windows, all, fortunately, closed for once, then repeated the violent performance on the other side."

"This gave us a first hand view from a distance of three feet of just how big a problem we had on our hands, because he was standing on his back legs looking over the cab of the truck."

"We tried to yell in a rather refined sort of way in order not to startle Susan, who was still asleep, but this was one bear that evidently wasn't the slightest bit scared of human odor or noise."

WINDOW GIVES UP

"Then coming back to the side he stood up and fumbled with the window, also closed for the first time in several days. It is seven feet from the ground. Suddenly he either gave it a smash or caught a claw in it, it crumpled into twisted wreckage. His big head swayed back and forth and we could hear every breath he made. Now only a flimsy screen window remained between us. If his huge paw or head came through this he would be able to reach around most of our house."

"I grabbed a butcher knife from the drawer, but its 10-inch length of steel lost its usual significance when I thought of the size of this giant. Suddenly we remembered our insect bombs, and grabbing one apiece, we sprayed them into the bear's face. After a minute of sniffing this strange odor he dropped to the ground and turned his attention to taking our back door off."

BE WANTED IN

"About this time we figured the situation was becoming critical. The door would pry loose with one pull, and then we would be trapped. Evidently this was one animal that wanted in."

"We shrieked, yodelled, and generally made like savages at an annual barbecue. After a minute or two there was silence from the visitor, and Sylvia spotted his great bulk waddling down the road."

"I yanked on some clothes, very cautiously opened the house door, and dove into the truck cab. The lights of a nearby road maintenance camp looked mighty good, and we parked there for the remainder of the night."

Ben Sets Sights On Lake Ontario

Plans Hinge on Swim Outcome Here Saturday

Muir in Strait Try Saturday Too

Victoria's Ben Laughren, who will make his sixth attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca Saturday, hopes to challenge Lake Ontario next.

Laughren told The Times today if he is successful Saturday, he will head east next week to start three to four weeks of intensive training. He hopes to duplicate Marilyn Bell's epic conquest of the chill, dangerous Lake Ontario.

Laughren said: "We have high hopes for Saturday's swim and if that one comes off, we head for Toronto next week to try the Lake."

"If we go and train for three or four weeks, we will need about $4,000 so we are looking for a sponsor. The Cherry Bank Hotel and Wilson's Frozen Foods are sponsoring Saturday's swim but after that, we will have to start hunting again."

Muir's bid Saturday will be one of two, both by highly-rated and Strait-tested swimmers. Keeping company with Ben will be bearded Bill Muir of Saanich, who will be making "number nine or 10, I can't remember now."

Laughren plans to leave the Breakwater at 10 Saturday morning and to swim in almost a direct line in the direction of Port Angeles.

He will have Stan Page for a navigator aboard the Miot, owned by Morris Wilkinson. Trainer Ove Witt will keep tabs on Laughren from the coaching boat.

Muir, who electrified Victorians a week ago Sunday with a brilliant and courageous attempt that ended heart-breakingly, only a mile and a half from shore, said today, "It looks like I'm becoming a part of that water out there."

"I keep trying these swims and every failure gives me new experience that helps me the next time out."

Muir's plans have not yet been completed. He said that his swim probably would start around noon from Saxa Point, where Bert Thomas, only man to swim the Strait, ended his victorious swim last summer.

Mrs. E. F. Rogers Bequeaths Cash To Institutions

Charitable institutions, churches and hospitals are the main beneficiaries of the estate of Mrs. Edith Fanny Rogers, formerly of 1189 Yates street, who died in Vancouver on March 29, 1956.

Mrs. Rogers' will was probated in Supreme Court chambers today.

She left $2,000 to the Central Baptist Church, $1,000 to the Queen Alexandra Solarium, and $750 to the Western Canadian Mission to the Jews. The Mission to Lepers, Canadian Protestant League, and the Northwest Baptist College also will receive each $500.

The will also stipulates that the residue of the estate be divided between the "Provincial Jubilee Hospital" and the Fairbridge Farm School, Duncan, which is now non-existent.

Donald Cameron, solicitor for the estate, is expected to apply to a Supreme Court justice for direction with regard to the last two named beneficiaries. One of the questions the court will be asked to decide is whether Mrs. Rogers meant the Royal Jubilee Hospital as there is no hospital known as the Provincial Jubilee Hospital.

National Hockey To Be Televised Through Tacoma

There was good news for local hockey and football fans today.

Ted Bryant, assistant program director for KJNT-TV, Channel 11, Tacoma, announced that his station would bring in 10 National Hockey League games live during the next season. The CBS network, leased by Channel 11, has contracted to carry the games from next January 5 through March 9.

Games will originate from New York, Boston, Detroit and Chicago.

Starting in September, said Mr. Bryant, Channel 11 will carry one of the top-flight professional football games each Sunday throughout the entire season.

In Victoria for the first time, Mr. Bryant thought the city and its surrounding countryside delightful. He and Mrs. Bryant are guests at the Olde England Inn, Esquimalt.

22 Polio Cases In B.C., Down From Last Year

Cut May Be Due To Salk or Cycle

There have been 22 cases of polio in British Columbia this year compared with 51 last year, a spokesman for the provincial health department reported today.

"It is too early yet to say just how much Salk vaccination has contributed to the drop," the spokesman said. "Doctors point out that B.C. has had a heavy incidence of polio for a number of years and it seems to go in cycles so this year's drop may be part of the cycle."

This year 176,000 B.C. children have received first shots of Salk vaccine. Last year 145,412 children received the vaccine. Of all children in B.C. last year, 38,130 were eligible for vaccination. Of those who accepted 14,865 were five-year-olds; 22,951 six-year-olds; 7,826 were seven-year-olds.

Of the total group, 43,250 completed the scheduled three injections.

The spokesman said last year's studies showed that in the five, six and seven-year-old groups, 12,488 children did not get any Salk vaccine and in that group there were 10 cases of polio.

"Therefore there were no cases in the group which did receive vaccination," the spokesman said. "It may be concluded that use of the vaccine prevented 36 cases of paralytic polio which otherwise would probably have occurred."

$1,000, $500 Prizes For B.C. Anthology

Publication of the B.C. Centennial Anthology by Toronto firm of McClelland and Stewart was officially endorsed by the directors of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The publication, which will contain 60 per cent new writing in its estimated 500 pages, will be the most comprehensive work of its kind on British Columbia, its people and history ever issued, if the ambitions of the advisory editorial board are fulfilled.

The board comprises eight of B.C.'s leading publicists: Roderick Haig Brown; Seth Halton, publisher of the Victoria Colonist; Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Victoria Daily Times; Willard Ireland, provincial archivist; Stuart Keate, Victoria Daily Times publisher; Barry Mather and Eric Nicol, of the Vancouver Sun and Vancouver Province, respectively.

It will be assisted by a sub-committee, and production will be under the managing editorship of T. K. Willis of Victoria.

FOUR CATEGORIES

Original contributions are solicited in any or all of the four categories: fiction, historical or contemporary non-fiction and poetry.

For the top contribution in any of the categories a prize of $1,000 will be awarded, with $500 going to the article or verse judged second-best.

All other accepted contributions will be paid for at the rate of at least four cents a word for prose and a minimum of $25 for poems.

Manuscripts must be in the hands of the editor by Jan. 31, 1957, legibly typed on one side of the paper and double-spaced. They must be mailed, unfolded, addressed to "The B.C. Centennial Anthology Committee, Box 1026, Victoria," and be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return.

It is hoped that at least 100 writers will be represented in the book, including all B.C.'s outstanding authors.

There is no restriction as to birthplace or residence of authors but the articles or verses submitted must be about B.C. or its people.

Articles or fiction should be from 1,500 to 3,500 words in length.

The anthology will contain about 150,000 words, 28 plates in color and up to 100 black and white illustrations.

Pens for Technical Work Useful at Office, at Home

By PENNY SAVER

Can I interest you in a felt-tipped pen that will write on metal, glass, wood, plastic, paper or cellophane? Interested? Curious? It's a pen meant especially for business and industries and comes complete with four interchangeable, different-shaped felt nibs that are held in place by friction. For addressing crates and cartons, marking metal containers and bins, for inspection and identification in offices and warehouses or for use by commercial artists, food store owners or merchants, this pen is new and handy, and will be used wherever permanent or temporary signs or markings are necessary. In a box with the pen and nibs come special instructions. It costs $3.50. Ink, that comes in self-dispensing containers, is black, orange, red, blue, green, yellow, brown, purple, white or silver, in two-ounce to one-gallon containers.

For general marking and drawing, use transparent ink, a clear, waterproof, instant-drying ink that's fade-resistant and permanent. Non-clogging. It won't rub off and colors may be blended for desired shade. It's permanent on painted or enameled surfaces but can be removed from fabric and non-porous surfaces with a special flo-master cleanser. For a more durable paint that will stand up under severe weather conditions, use the semi-opaque ink.

Another interesting pen is the German-made rapidograph designed for use in drafting, lettering, art work, music and carbon copies. This pen can be used with writing or drawing ink, and is non-clogging. A strictly technical pen, it has a pin-point writing end, so that a clear, well-defined impression is made, even through numerous car-

bons. Fine notes of music, and thin touches on some art work are no longer a problem. Get a rapidograph. One costs $4.50.

The attractive European-made gift wrap that I told you about some time ago has come out again, only in different packages. It was in 25-cent packages but now is available in 10-cent packages. This dainty-patterned paper comes in many colors and designs, that can be adapted to special occasions.

If you're thinking towards Fall, and want to stock up on warm and soft sweaters, call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where there's a sale of luxurious cashmere and Italian-made sweaters to team with your favorite skirts or jumpers. They are priced at 25 per cent off regular price.

Serve Salads For Summer

Salads are a must for your hot weather meal planning. Here is one for special occasions... the popular "Di Cicco" salad. It's a Caesar-type salad, using lemon juice, anchovies, eggs and Parmesan cheese.

DI CICCIO SALAD
Four quarts romaine, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cracked black pepper, 1 cup croutons, 1/2 cup garlic oil, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice, 1 coddled egg, 2 tablespoons chopped anchovies, 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Toss romaine with salt and pepper in salad bowl, then form a bed with croutons in centre. Over this pour dressing made from garlic oil (2 to 3 cloves soaked in oil), Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. Toss lightly. Add the coddled egg (boiled 1 minute) and anchovies. Complete tossing salad while sprinkling Parmesan cheese over all.

Crusty brown pieces of oven fried chicken become a gourmet dish when served with a thin sour cream gravy accented with chunks of ripe olives and slivered roasted almonds. Serve with steamed rice and a simple green vegetable.

Busy Schedule for Fashion Editor At New York Press Week Showings

(Noni Damasko, Times Fashion Editor, in New York for the 25th National Press Week, reports fashion's latest styles for fall to Victoria readers.)

By NONA DAMASKE

Never have I spent such a hectic day. One fabulous collection of fashions followed another and, surprisingly enough, each designer introduced new touches and different versions of the fall fashion picture.

We began a busy day with the Crompton Jam Session: a delightful breakfast showing of midday fashions in velveteen, corduroy and velvet. Slim, western pants in black novelty chevron corduroy were combined with a long-sleeved white shirt and there was an elegant "at home" robe in warm, burnt orange pinwale corduroy. For the cocktail hour there were dressy sheaths of Lyons velvet, and full-skirted velvets for dancing.

LASTING FASHION

B. H. Wragge features clothes from a "long term" point of view. Shakespeare said:

"Fashion wears out more apparel than the man," but Mr. Wragge feels that, in the fashion world,

"Time and space have been telescoped; climates and seasons have been equalized. Women

every State in the Union. A close-fitting short jacket of black wool completed this smart daytime costume.

Herbert Sondheim is the "fair-haired boy" as far as fashion editors are concerned. He commented his own show, and the ovation was terrific. He is a deeply-tanned, grey-haired man with a very pleasing personality. He announced that his collection is unique in the respect that there is no hint of "My Fair Lady" stylings, which are being featured this fall.

His collection of black dresses was most outstanding. The early evening dress was more understated than the cocktail dress we have known in previous seasons. The bare top look seems to be fast disappearing, even for gala formal occasions.

Fresh importance is given to the costumes, first by a new "top secret" fashion... exemplified by a brown straw tweed costume with a short jacket buttoned up over a finely-tucked cafe au lait blouse of silk chiffon.

Trigere's "Black Tie" costume — the jacket is designed in white silk satin and worn over a sheath of black chiffon broadcloth combined with white satin.

en demand clothes that will be at home in any latitude or longitude.

He showed many tiny snood caps, made of the same fabric as his dresses and suits. They are adorable... and all the rage with New York women who have long hair or an attached hair piece.

One costume was particularly interesting in its blouse treatment. Over a slim black wool skirt, the model wore a long-sleeved silk shirt in black and white. The white ground was printed with black seals from Samuel Winston's fall and winter collection was designed by Roxane, with hats by Emme and jewelry by Trifori. The collection showed the narrower, yet softer, silhouette, the elevated waistline theme, tall stately evening gowns with gently draped, wrap-around skirts, held tight around the ribs by wide sashes into which dainty bouquets were tucked.

We walked over to the Savoy-Plaza Hotel where the Alamac Knitting Mills entertained with lunch and a fashion parade of Everglaze cotton knits, Tholapin jersey and Furalls.

A "just for fun" group included skinny pants, christened "Tailpipe Pants" and are shown with the new car coat.

Robert Trigere's glamorous collection was commented by his sister, designer Pauline Trigere. Pauline was wearing a beautifully simple sleeveless dress in gold pure silk dotted with white.

Several loose travel coats in the collection featured buttons pushed to one side. Trigere also showed a style aptly named the "Janis Look." These two-faced coats had back and front buttoning to match.

FUR STREAMERS

Many of his suits had open-crowned halo hats of matching fabric. The fur streamer was shown many times. It is a long, narrow strip of fur, narrower than the stole as we know it.

We saw it in chinchilla and mink. Speaking of fur, a direct switch was seen in a costume of broadtail. Skirt and jacket were of the fur, and they were worn with a wool blouse.

Broadtail tops the list in furs seen this year. This precious fur can be molded and draped to the figure just like a fabric.

For cocktail wear, the models showed "birdcage veils": loose, puffy veils which completely cover the face, and in most cases tie around the neck with a fine velvet strand.

The closing number was one which is being sent to the fashion festival of Venice. A full-flowing pink cape with a sable collar was lined with black plum jersey over a slender column dress of matching jersey. Only trims on the dress were slender shoulder straps of rhinestones.

We finished the day as guests of the Millinery Institute at cocktails, dinner and entertainment at the Hotel Ambassador.

Duke Snider, Punched Fan, Forget It

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)—Outfielder Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers and a Cincinnati Redlegs baseball fan agreed in a courtroom Wednesday to shake hands and forget their exchange of fistcliffs that followed Tuesday night's game at Crosley Field.

The Dodger star and Baumel traded punches after the fan had taunted Snider with the remark, "What's the matter, Duke, haven't you any guts?" Each claimed the other had thrown the first punch. Baumel lost two false teeth in the argument.

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Georges Leclerc of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, said today Canada's Davis Cup team will be named by Friday.

CANADIAN LEADS 25-MILE SWIM MARATHON

Husky Tom Park, 32-year-old former, Hamilton, Ont., resident, was setting pace today in annual 25-mile Atlantic City swim marathon. Park, defending champion, led Toronto's Cliff Lumsdon by 300 feet at 16-mile mark. Park, seen with wife and two children, started for Victoria last year to try Juan de Fuca, but called it off when Bert Thomas made the swim. Atlantic City prize is $5,000.

Marilyn's
Diary

Hello Folks!

I guess most people feel a little low when they have to go back to work after a holiday but with a swimmer, at least this swimmer, it's good to get back to work.

I went back to the training routine yesterday and I felt more at home back in the water after the brief holiday coach Gus gave me.

Gus put me through a training swim that lasted a little over an hour yesterday morning, and it seemed like old times with Gus in the training boat, me in the water and all our party, Phyllis Griffiths, Dorothy Howarth, Maria Brenk and Jack Judges coming along to give me moral support.

Marilyn

In fact, it was so much like old times that I gave Jack the usual splash of water that I always give him and, good old Jack, he acted surprised and indignant even though it is the umpteenth time that I have splashed him during a practice swim.

We cracked our old, corny jokes that we keep cracking in all our swims but it is things like that that help make training more fun than work.

After we came out of the water, we rested a bit and then sat down to lunch.

Maria and I drove Dorothy out to see her aunt in the afternoon and we returned to our hotel for a little loafing.

Maria said she thought she would like to go in for a dip in front of the hotel and, impulsive me, I told her that if she would stay in for five minutes, I would eat my hat.

Juan de Fuca swim bid number 48 ended in tears and frustration this morning.

Ann Meraw
Will Attempt
38-Mile Swim

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—A 36-year-old Vancouver housewife quietly began training in Penticton today for one of the longest planned swims yet attempted in the world.

Ann Mundigel Meraw—mother of a 16-year-old boy—slipped into Penticton Tuesday night to prepare to tackle the 38 miles of Okanagan Lake between Penticton and Kelowna.

Husky Tacoma logger Bert Thomas, conqueror of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, lasted less than three hours in both his two tries last year to swim Okanagan Lake.

7,000 See
Famed Jockey

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 7,000 racing fans turned out to Exhibition Park Tuesday to see the riding of jockey Billy Pearson, winner of $96,000 on two TV shows for his knowledge of art.

Pearson, a veteran of 16 years as a jockey, finished a comfortable fourth on Great Count in the third race. In the fifth race he finished third riding Fairy's Gem. His horse was scratched in a third race.

Park Ahead
Of Lumsdon
By 300 Feet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Toronto marathoner Cliff Lumsdon whipped past arch-rival Tom Park late today to lead in the 25-mile world championship swim with an estimated six miles to go.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Defending champion Tom Park and Olympic swimmer Greta Anderson were swimming "stroke for stroke" this afternoon as they passed the 16-mile mark of the 25-mile world championship swim.

Toronto's Cliff Lumsdon, arch-rival of the Hamilton-born Park, was reported 300 feet behind the leaders but closing the gap.

Park, who now lives in Lakewood, Calif., was stroking toward the $5,000 first prize for men which he has captured in the two previous "world" marathons off Atlantic City's steel pier.

Park had drawn even with the Danish girl, who won the 100-metric freestyle in the 1948 Olympics, despite the 20-minute head start given the girls.

He knew when he was licked, he told Walter Tucker (L. Rostern) and that's why he was getting out. Mr. Milner has announced he will resign at the end of the year but will continue on as a member of the board of grain commissioners.

Mr. Milner made the remarks about his federal powers to control shipping and storage facilities as he defended his previous statement that the Canadian Pacific Railway had let him down badly when he appealed for more boxcars during a critical period of last March 15-April 30.

R. A. Emerson, CPR vice-president in charge of operations, told a committee Tuesday that Mr. Milner had been in "error" about the boxcar situation last spring.

There had been no shortage of boxcars but prolonged delays in unloading of CPR shipments of grain at the terminal elevators. Mr. Emerson singled out the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool as being the "most flagrant and notorious offender."

Jack McLaughlin Dies
VANCOUVER (CP)—Jack McLaughlin, nicknamed "The Cat" for his panther-like speed in the wrestling ring, died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home in suburban Richmond.

The 53-year-old Scotman attracted wide attention from Vancouver wrestling fans in 1932 when he won the national middleweight crown

Heat To Continue
Says Weatherman

Downtown temperatures of 95 degrees were recorded at 3 this afternoon although the official high recorded at Gonzales Hill weather station was 82.

This was nudging the official highest of the year, 83 degrees, recorded May 30. Weatherman William Mackie was optimistic that final high today would be 85 (official) marking today as the hottest day this year.

He said no change is in sight for two or three days.

Between 11 a.m. and 12.30 p.m. the mercury climbed nine degrees—from 72 to 81; and it was still moving up.

NO RELIEF
Warmth of a blazing sun received no relief early today from the sea; winds blew offshore and weakly. Sea breezes are expected toward night.

Monday official high was 73, but at 5 p.m. downtown thermometers pointed to 82—one degree less than this year's high of 83 (official) May 30.

Mr. Mackie says the last measurable rainfall occurred July 6. Total hours of sunshine in July to Monday night was 199.1. This is 65 hours more than at the same date in July last year and 24 hours more than Victoria received all last month.

The warmest-ever July 18 was recorded in 1944 when the mercury climbed to 88.6.

How does the weather affect Victoria?
Royal Jubilee Hospital reports treating one emergency case of severe sunburn and there has been an increase in emergency treatments for strokes and heart attacks—three in one day recently.

Sales of bathing suits, sportswear, soft drinks, ice cream, sun-tan oil and sun glasses boomed today and Monday—but in other parts of the city business slowed. Golf courses and beaches were crowded.

Shirt-sleeve weather continued to draw tourists and in the cool of evening Monday groups of city visitors were observed peering in windows of closed china and antique shops.

PM TELLS RUSSIANS

Arms Cuts Need
UN Agreement

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has told Soviet Premier Bulganin that reductions in armed forces should be part of an agreement providing means to ensure "that the reduction measures are in fact carried out."

In a letter sent to Moscow Monday, he said Canada's "satisfaction" with the Soviet announcement in May of a 1,200,000-man cut in Russia's armed forces "is somewhat tempered by the reflection that these reductions would have been more timely 10 years ago, when the western powers demolished the great armies they had brought together in the common interest of the United Nations."

The Soviet union still would have more divisions in Europe than the western powers have stationed there.

Mr. St. Laurent's letter, which he tabled in the Commons, was Canada's reply to a June 6 letter from the Russian premier.

CONSULTED ALLIES
He said similar letters were sent to Britain, the United States, France, West Germany, Italy and Turkey, and that Canada's reply was made after "full consultation" with her NATO allies.

MILNER 'HAMSTRUNG'

Grain Controller
Powers Illusory

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Controller Roy W. Milner said today his powers are not operative in a practical sense.

He said he wouldn't use them to force the railways to increase the flow of prairie boxcars, because he would have injunctions slapped against him from one end of the country to the other.

If he forced the railways to increase the flow of boxcars for grain, they would say to him: "What commodities do we not haul?"

It would create an "intolerable situation," Mr. Milner told the Commons agriculture committee. Shippers of other commodities, left without shipping facilities, would likely take court action against the transport controller.

Mr. Milner said later he believes there is no one in Canada who can handle the transport controller's job.

He knew when he was licked, he told Walter Tucker (L. Rostern) and that's why he was getting out. Mr. Milner has announced he will resign at the end of the year but will continue on as a member of the board of grain commissioners.

Mr. Milner made the remarks about his federal powers to control shipping and storage facilities as he defended his previous statement that the Canadian Pacific Railway had let him down badly when he appealed for more boxcars during a critical period of last March 15-April 30.

25 NEW POLIO CASES IN CHICAGO OUTBREAK

CHICAGO (UP).—Medical authorities today battled the city's mounting polio outbreak with an additional 14,126 hypodermic syringes and needles.

The extra equipment was rushed to the Chicago board of health by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Illinois department of health to bolster a dwindling supply at free inoculation centres.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, reported 25 new polio cases in a 24-hour period to raise the year's total to 194.

Four persons have died from the disease this year compared with two deaths last year when 35 cases occurred during the same period.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

One Hurt, 16 Flee As Ammonia Spills

VANCOUVER (CP).—One man was taken to hospital and 16 other persons were forced into the street Tuesday when an ammonia pipe broke and filled an ice cream plant with liquid and fumes.

Garry Hoskins of nearby South Burnaby suffered burns to his feet and legs when liquid ammonia poured onto the floor of the room where he was working. Other plant workers and office personnel fled the choking ammonia fumes.

An estimated 500 pounds of liquid ammonia escaped and turned into gas when it warmed up. An inhalator squad took four hours to neutralize the escaping ammonia.

The accident is believed to have occurred when a drain valve was snapped off by a workman as he scraped ice from a freezing pipe.

MARITIME MUSEUM

VANCOUVER.—City council will be asked to put up $300,000 as its share in the financing of a $1,250,000 maritime museum in the city's Kitsilano district.

The grant would depend on a guarantee from the Native Sons of B.C. to back the centennial project. The lodge hopes to obtain a $24,000 federal grant and raise the balance with private and public subscriptions.

FIRE HAZARD

CHILLIWACK.—B.C. Forest Service rangers reported here Tuesday timbered areas of the upper Fraser Valley are tinder-dry and they termed some parts critical.

With temperatures in the mid 80s, Mission City village commission imposed sprinkling restrictions until further notice. In Matsqui, engineers plan to sink a well in the municipal cemetery and hope to strike artesian water at about 20 feet.

BOY DROWNED

ABBOTSFORD.—Twelve-year-old David Penner of Matsqui was drowned in Mill Lake here Tuesday night. RCMP said the boy was swimming with his brother when the accident happened.

Neutralist Bloc Formation Seen In Tito Talks

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (UP).—Observers speculated today that a new "third force" in world politics may emerge from today's meeting of the top leaders of three "uncommitted" nations in the cold war.

Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was scheduled to join Yugoslav President Tito and Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a 24-hour conference that may forge a new neutralist bloc poised between the East and the West.

All three have denied such intentions, although each is on record as supporting the philosophy of neutralism in principle. Informed observers said the course of their talk will almost certainly follow such lines, even if they reach no concrete agreements.

Tito and Nasser, who conferred in Belgrade last week, preceded Nehru to Brioni, the Yugoslav president's vacation retreat off the rugged Adriatic coast.

Nehru indicated that the three-way meeting was somewhat of an accident.

"I planned to go to Brioni primarily to meet Tito," the Prime Minister said before leaving Paris today. "I learned later that Nasser would be there."

"It's not the kind of conference to solve any problems," he added. "We will simply discuss things."

2 B.C. Men From Missing Boat Located

Two Ocean Falls, B.C., men reported missing from a damaged 15-foot power boat, brought to Victoria this week on a government survey vessel, have turned up safe.

RMCP at the up-coast paper mill town said today Frank Storey and Leo Sepala abandoned the craft. The aluminum hull had been crushed on shoreline rocks while they were sleeping nearby. They hiked back to Ocean Falls and the boat was later found by the survey ship Marabell.

The craft is being held by federal customs officials here for the owners, an Ocean Falls boat rental firm.

Gerald A. Yardley, official receiver of wrecks, said today an outboard motor on the boat was still in good shape but the hull is badly damaged.

Sees Fatal Duel

BRINDISI, Italy (Reuters).—Police are seeking a 15-year-old boy accused of killing another boy in a duel with knives below the balcony of a girl they both claimed as a sweetheart. Police said the girl, 14, watched terrified as the boys fought for her in the street below.
